MRS. HARDING DECREES ONLY SIMPLE RITES

Vetoes Plan for Military Display at Funeral Services Before "Home Folks"

NOT TO BURY BODY

Will be Placed in Mausoleum Prepared to Receive it at Marion, Ohio

Marion, O., Aug. 7.—President Harding's body will be placed in the Marion semicircular vault, after the funeral services here Friday afternoon, will be placed in the receiving vault at the semicircular vault held there pending the erection of a mausoleum, to receive it.

This was a part of the funeral arrangements agreed to by Mrs. Harding widow of the late President, as communicated to Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., the President's brother, and Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, who boarded the funeral train west of Chicago yesterday.

The funeral plans approved by Mrs. Harding call for the utmost simplicity. Rev. J. M. Landis, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, the late President's place of worship when in Marion, will conduct the funeral service.

Among the tentative plans vetoed by Mrs. Harding was for Troop C, Ohio National Guard cavalry, to act as an honorary escort. The troops will attend the funeral but will not act as an escort. This was said to be in keeping with Mrs. Harding's request that no military display be made at the funeral services conducted by the late President's home folks.

In order that Mr. Harding's home folks and friends of his native state may have the privilege of a last look at their departed friend Mrs. Harding's plan called for the body to lie in state at the home of his father from soon after its arrival Thursday morning until 9 or 10 o'clock that night and again for a few hours Friday afternoon. She would not approve tentative plans for the body to lie in state at the Marion county court house.

Services at Home.

The funeral services at the Harding home will be conducted at 3 p. m. Friday.

Even the plans approved by Mrs. Harding are contingent upon the condition of the body upon its arrival from Washington. The coffin, it is said, has not been opened during the trip across the continent and would not be until it reached Washington. Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, Mrs. Harding's personal physician, said that he found Mrs. Harding in much better physical condition than he expected and expressed the belief that she would be able to bear up under the grief and strain.

Secretary Christian announced that no more floral tributes would be received even from friends in the President's home folks as the train already was overloaded by token of silent esteem.

DRUGGISTS OF STATE CONVENE IN BISMARCK

President Irtich of Association Emphasizes Scientific Development

BUSINESS CHANGES

Elaborate Program of Entertainment Is Arranged For Convention

The thirty-eighth annual convention of the North Dakota Pharmaceutical Association got under way today in the Masonic temple, with druggists from all parts of the state in attendance. The number is expected to grow during the day with the arrival of druggists by train and automobile until the attendance reaches at least two hundred.

President W. H. Irtich of Hebron, calling the association to order, introduced Mayor A. P. Lenhart of Bismarck who welcomed the visitors and Peter Margens of Fairmont, who responded. Mayor Lenhart welcomed the visitors both as president of the city commission and a druggist for nearly 30 years.

"The drug business today is much different from many years ago," said Mr. Lenhart. "The old-time apothecary shop was devoted almost wholly to the business of filling prescriptions, while today the drug business is pretty much a 'merchandise game.' The public has come to look on the drug store as a public service station, open early and late, where one can get anything from a postage stamp to a phonograph." Mayor Lenhart said that an unusually fine program had been prepared by Bert Finney, local secretary, and asked the druggists to make themselves at home while in the city.

Business and Science.
President Irtich in delivering the President's address emphasized the importance of the pharmaceutical business and the necessity for cooperation among the druggists in the development of the business as a science.

"Without a development in the science of pharmacy our profession would be at a standstill, and to that development we must look to the American Pharmaceutical Association, the mother of all pharmaceutical associations," he said. Plans for the reorganization of that body will be presented to the state convention.

President Irtich said that the present state pharmacy law was revised in 1907 and that he believed that time had arrived when the measure now in force should be replaced by one conforming to the modern practice of pharmacy. He suggested that the legislative committee undertake to draft a measure to be presented in the next legislative assembly.

Business conditions throughout the country, he said, are not in the most optimistic and stable form but he said that pharmacists have little to complain of as compared to other lines. He favored the Kelley-Stevens bill to stabilize the trade.

Practical State School.
"Professor Sudre, head of the school of pharmacy of the North Dakota Agricultural College, has requested that I recommend the establishment of a standing committee on the school of pharmacy," he said. "Our school is one of which we may well be proud, for its reputation in educating well-trained and informed pharmacists is not confined to this state alone."

Reports of other officers and delegates from district and national pharmacists' associations occupied the remainder of the morning session. This afternoon the druggists listened to an address on "North Dakota," by President John Lee Coulter of the Agricultural College; an address on the subject, "A Modern Professional Pharmacy," by D. F. Jones of Watertown, S. D., an address on "A New Era in Retail Merchandising" by Dr. John W. Gamble, president Standard Chemical Manufacturing company, Omaha, Neb.; address on "Cigars and Tobacco," by H. W. Rowley, Consolidated Cigar Corporation, New York.

COAL RATES CUT PLANNED

Would Benefit Eastern Part of North Dakota

The tentative report of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case heard several months ago in St. Paul in which the Northwestern Coal Dock Association sought lower freight rates on coal from Duluth and Superior to meet rates on coal direct from Illinois by rail proposes reductions in coal freight rates from the head of the lakes to points in the eastern part of North Dakota. V. E. Smart traffic expert of the railroad commission, said today.

Under the proposed distance scales the freight rate on soft coal from Duluth to Fargo would be cut 8 cents per ton, from $2.61 to $2.53; cut 7 cents per ton to Prosper; 5 cents per ton to Grand Forks and Hunter, from $2.79 to $2.74; four cents to Casselton.

Thousands Line the Tracks as Train Moves Slowly Through City of Pittsburgh

SPEED IS REDUCED

On Board Harding Funeral Train, Newcastle, Pa.—(By the Associated Press)—Aug. 7.—Pennsylvania shortly after 10 o'clock today took up the sorrowful task of paying tribute to the nation's late chief executive.

The funeral train bearing the body of President Harding entered the state near this point and then started across the southwestern corner, passing through Pittsburgh, Connelsville, and a number of smaller towns.

Although far behind its schedule the train was seen by thousands who reverently bowed in honor of the dead and with sympathy for the grief-stricken widow.

Thousands upon thousands of men, women and children of Pittsburgh formed a line along the Baltimore and Ohio right-of-way and from the tip of the most distant suburb to the Glenwood station paid a voiceless but impressive tribute to President Harding as the train passed on to Washington. The train arrived at 12:32 p. m. and passed on to Glenwood for a change of engines.

The mourners standing bare-headed under a scorching sun were numerous as the train made its way slowly through the city. Crowds unprecedented in the history of Pittsburgh thronged hill-sides, bridges and every point of vantage. At the Glenwood station city and county officials, delegations representing different organizations and others met the train of sorrow.

The speed of the train was reduced to a minimum for the short trip from Actna, a suburb on the outskirts of the city, to Glenwood. So slow was the progress that it required 44 minutes to negotiate the few miles through the east end district to the station.

LARGE CROWD AT FUNERAL

C. M. Dahl, Pioneer Clothier, Paid High Tribute by Friends

Many old friends filled the Dahl home yesterday to pay their respects to C. M. Dahl a pioneer resident of Bismarck, who succumbed to stomach trouble after a lingering illness. Jones of Cassinville, Ill., who has charge of the local Presbyterian church during the month of August, had charge of the services. Rev. Myers paid a high tribute to the character and life of Mr. Dahl. An abundance of beautiful floral bouquets and wreaths from friends and organizations of the city, banked about the funeral bier, bore mute testimony of the friendship and friendship of the associates of Mr. Dahl and his family.

Henry Halverson sang "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go," and "Abide with Me." Mrs. John L. Hughes presided at the piano. Following the impressive service at the residence was a short K. P. service at the grave in charge of E. M. Thompson and R. L. Best at Fairview where he was laid to rest.

THOUSANDS GATHER

Thronging Line Pennsylvania Avenue Awaiting Body to Be Taken Into White House

(By The Associated Press)

Washington, Aug. 7.—A city of mourning awaited today to pay supreme tribute at the bier of Warren G. Harding before his body is taken to lie forever in the Ohio soil among the kindreds and neighbors he loved and who loved him, not for the greatness of his place in life but for the generous heart so suddenly stilled in death.

Hours before the long special train with its freight of sadness was due the folks of Washington, high and low, had begun to gather along the way to the White House.

Reports of the train's delay had not altered the plan of thousands here to be in their places early. Steel cables that but a short time ago held back rolling thousands gathered for a Shriners' convolve in which the President played so large a part, again girded Pennsylvania Avenue, this time to hedge the ranks of silent humanity waiting patiently in the summer heat to glimpse the casket as it rolled behind the cavalry escort.

Government Offices Close.
As the time of arrival grew near the machinery of government ceased to move; the great departments of government were blank and silent and the thousands of government workers trooped to join the other citizens in the sorrowful throng.

There were no ceremonies planned at the brief military honors at the station and again at the White House. The Marine Band was to play as the casket was carried and lifted with gentle hands to the black-wheeled gun limber that awaited it.

President Coolidge and the few cabinet members in Washington upon whom has fallen the sad duty of planning the honors to be paid in the name of a hundred million Americans to the fallen chiefman arranged their program so as to be gathered at the station only a short time before the funeral train was to appear and to assemble in the President's waiting room designed especially for the happy events of the nation's life, for the welcoming new President and of honored guests of the nation.

By that route came many men to Washington in the yesterdays. This came the men of place and power in Europe during the war to consult with America's part in that great adventure; thus Pershing came to receive thanks and plaudits of a grateful nation; thus came Harding himself only a short time ago, walking strongly, his wide shoulders erect, his face lifted, his eyes alight with elation, yet showing the thoughtful resolve to spare himself nothing of his best endeavor in the nation's service.

Back to President's Room.
That service was given lavishly; lavishly that death swept down with terrible suddenness to check him in full course and turn him back to come again to Washington to the President's room, the station and from the room of the silent capital beyond.

Before when Harding came to claim him cheers and shoutings greeted him as he stepped outside under the arched entrance of the President's room to see the wide-flung plaza packed with happy people waving him with a glad heart. A little later covered the gray dome of the capitol where he had sat through contented years as Senator, with flags streaming from the staff on senate and house wings, the door to the great labor he was to know.

In preparation for his expected return today, flags were drooping at half-staff from the triple staffs that that front the station and from the roof of the silent capital beyond. He will come to honor here prepared for him such as only dead presidents may know and to a night of peace and utter rest at last in the dimly, stately setting of the East room of the White House.

Cavalry Escort There.
Before the time when the train was to arrive the cavalry escort from Fort Myer was to form a line across the plaza at the station and wait until the casket is delivered into keeping of the army comrades of the dead commander in peace, to be carried to the White House as fallen soldiers are carried.

A battery of steel guns has been ordered to wait at the station also and over at the entrance the Marine Band has been ordered to take up its position, ready to share in the sorrow as it has so often through the years in the joys of the nation.

Through the soldiery no pains have been spared that each man and animal might do honor to the dead in his op-

Throng Line Pennsylvania Avenue Awaiting Body to Be Taken Into White House

(By The Associated Press)
Washington, Aug. 7.—A city of mourning awaited today to pay supreme tribute at the bier of Warren G. Harding before his body is taken to lie forever in the Ohio soil among the kindred and neighbors he loved and who loved him, not for the greatness of his place in life but for the generous heart so suddenly stilled in death.

Hours before the long special train with its freight of sadness was due the folks of Washington, high and low, had begun to gather along the way to the White House.

Reports of the train's delay had not altered the plan of thousands here to be in their places early. Steel cables that but a short time ago held back rolling thousands gathered for a Shriner's convocation in the Presidential playground so large a part, again the thousands of Pennsylvania Avenue, this time to hedge the ranks of silent humanity waiting patiently in the summer heat to glimpse the casket as it rolled behind the cavalry escort.

Government Offices Close.
As the time of arrival grew near the machinery of government ceased to move; the great departments of government were blank and silent and the thousands of government workers trooped to join the other citizens in the sorrowful throngs.

There were no ceremonies planned at the brief military honors at the station and again at the White House. The Marine Band was to play as the casket was carried and lifted with gentle hands to the black-wheeled gun limber that awaited it.

President Coolidge and the few cabinet members in Washington upon whom has fallen the sad duty of planning the honors to be paid in the name of a hundred million Americans to the fallen chief of state, had gathered at the station only a short time before the funeral train was to appear and to assemble in the President's waiting room designed especially for the happy event of the time sleep of the welcoming of new Presidents and of honored guests of the nation.

By that route came many men to Washington in the yesterdays. They came the men of place and power in Europe during the war to consult with America's part in that great adventure; thus Pershing came to receive thanks and plaudits of a grateful nation; thus came Harding himself only two short years ago, walking erect, his face lifted, his eyes alight with elation, yet at the same time a full resolve to spare himself nothing of his best endeavor in the nation's service.

Back to President's Room.
That service was given lavishly, lavishly that death swept down with terrible suddenness to check him in full course and turn him back to President's room, at this time sleeping in a flag-draped casket, free forever from the cares of the great office that sapped his life away.

Before when Harding came to claim his countrymen had given him cheers and shoutings, greeted him as he stepped outside under the arched entrance of the President's room to see the wide-flung plaza packed with happy people waving him friendly acclaim. A little beyond towered the capitol, yet at the same time where he had sat through countless years as Senator, with flags streaming from the staff on senate and house wings, the door to the great labor he was to know.

In preparation for his expected return today, flags were drooping at half-staff from the triple staffs that front the station and from the roof of the silent capitol beyond. He will come to honor here prepared for him such as only dead presidents may know and to a night of peace and utter rest at last in the dim, stately setting of the East room of the White House.

Cavalry Escort There.
Before the time when the train was to arrive the cavalry escort from Fort Meyer was to form a line across the plaza at the station and wait until the casket is delivered into keeping of the army comrades of the dead commander in peace, to be carried to the White House as fallen soldiers are carried.

A battery of steel guns has been ordered to wait at the station, also of peace and utter rest at last in the dim, stately setting of the East room of the White House. Band has been ordered to take up the position, ready to share in the sorrow as it has so often through the years led the joys of the nation.

Through the solitary no pains have been spared that each man and animal might do honor to the dead in his appearance. (Continued on Page Three)

NO STRIKE THREATS

Profiteers Cause High Prices and Poverty Among Labor

Rio de Janeiro, Aug. 6.—The million and a quarter citizens of this city are fighting a gallant but losing battle against the constantly increasing cost of living. The besetting army of speculators, profiteers, corner manipulators, and "middle-men" are pushing the attack with relentless vigor, while the desperate populace is making feeble but bitter resistance.

It is estimated that the cost of living here has increased 100 per cent within the last twelve months. At the beginning of that period it was nearly double what it was five years ago. Many necessities which the common people considered necessities a few short months ago are now looked upon as luxuries.

Not only have prices doubled and tripled on food, clothing and housing, but the quality of all these things has deteriorated just as rapidly. Imitation, falsification, and adulteration have become so common that they no longer cause comment. Owing to the cost of materials, only unavoidable repairs have been made on all buildings, and there is practically no new construction going on.

The local authorities, recognizing the desperate nature of the situation, are struggling to ameliorate conditions. The municipal council has created a committee to confer with the minister of transportation and the agriculture committee of the Senate to seek a solution of the problem.

The street fairs which were established in every section of the city a little more than a year ago have become tremendously popular institutions. Food staples and articles of clothing and household use are sold at these fairs at prices considerably lower than prevail in the stores. Rich as well as poor are patrons. It is no uncommon sight to see a richly dressed lady loading a limousine with her purchases at a street fair.

Two or three of the popular newspapers have been conducting campaigns against what they term "The Daily Tragedy," in which for weeks they have covered their front pages with pictures and heartrending stories of the poverty and misery that is found in all parts of the city, and which they assert has not been equalled here in modern times.

In contrast to these gloomy pictures, however, is the undeniable fact that never in Rio's history has there been such display of wealth and luxury on the city's downtown streets as at present. The Avenida Rio Branco, on any pleasant afternoon, is almost impassable because of the fashionably dressed crowds that throng its sidewalks. Silks and jewels are conspicuous, and high priced automobiles pass in endless procession. The shop windows are lavish in their displays of luxuries sold at fabulous prices. Motion picture shows, theaters, and amusement clubs are crowded to capacity by pleasure seekers.

There is little unemployment, and while wages have not increased in proportion to prices, there have been no strikes nor serious talk of strikes for more than two years. Despite the increasing flow of immigration from Europe, both manufacturers and agricultural interests complain that they are unable to maintain or expand their activities because of labor shortage.

SEEK TO FIX HOUSE VALUE

Judge Pugh Soon to Determine Value of George E. Wallace Home

Dickinson, N. D., Aug. 6.—Judge Thomas Pugh will not hear arguments as to the "reasonable value" of the home of George E. Wallace, former state tax commissioner, until the remittitur in the case is received from the supreme court, he told William Langer and Charles Simon, attorneys, when they sought to argue the matter Saturday afternoon.

Judge Pugh is expected soon to hear the matter. The supreme court in reversing the case recently, held that the person for whom a home was built by the state and in which cases there were disputes as to the price must pay the reasonable value of the house or surrender it.

The Home Building Association claimed that the cost of the Wallace home was $11,700, while Wallace asserted a verbal contract was made to build it for $5,800. Judge Pugh fixed the amount at which he said the state should deliver the house at $6,220.

Under the supreme court decision the value of the house will be fixed. William Langer, attorney for Mr. Wallace, appeared before Judge Pugh at Dickinson Saturday and wanted to present evidence, intended to show the reasonable value of the house was $6,500. Charles Simon, for the Attorney-General's office, said that the house had been sold by Mr. Wallace for $8,500, and that less than this amount could not be considered a reasonable value. The matter of the sale price of the house was introduced previously in the case.

CONFIDENCE IN COOLIDGE BEING SHOWN

Business Should Not Suffer Because of President's Death, Leaders Say

New York, Aug. 6.—The first shock at President Harding's death, past New York, the financial and business center of the nation, Saturday night turned to speculation on the effect the president's passing is to have on the nation's material welfare.

In clubs, hotels and other places where business was discussed, particular interest centered on tomorrow's openings of the various exchanges—barometers, if not always accurate ones, of business trends. All the exchanges were closed today in tribute to the dead president. Their opening for half sessions Sunday morning for the first trading since he died.

While all the important financial and industrial men interviewed expressed confidence in Calvin Coolidge, the new president, characterizing him as an able man, amply qualified for the arduous task to which he has been called, there was some difference of opinion as to how the sudden shift of power would affect business.

Gary Is Disturbed
Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, was one of those who thought that business would suffer temporarily.

"I am terribly disturbed," he said, when first apprised of the president's death. "President Harding's removal at this time is a calamity. He had the confidence and the affection of the whole people. The business world will suffer, temporarily."

On the other hand, Charles E. Mitchell, president of one of the greatest banks in America—The National City Bank—declared that the change in presidents should be accomplished "without the stirring of a ripple upon the economic and business surface."

Another optimist was Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and Company.

SPUD GROWERS SUE RAILROAD

Demand Compensation For Loss Because of Car Lack

Fargo, Aug. 6.—Action to recover $53,805, said to be due them by reason of loss alleged to have been sustained because of failure of the Great Northern railway to furnish cars for moving the potato crop last fall, has been begun against that railroad by the Halstad potato growers association of Halstad, Minn.

The final outcome of the action will be watched with keen interest by all potato shippers of the Red River Valley, as it is considered by potato shippers at Moorhead and elsewhere in the nature of a test case.

At a meeting of potato growers and shippers, held in Moorhead last fall to consider the car shortage which was acute at that time, Hugh J. Hughes of St. Paul, head of the Minnesota state bureau of markets, advised shippers that, in his opinion, they had a good cause of action against the railroads when the carriers failed to deliver cars as ordered and in consequence of such failure the shipper suffered monetary loss.

First of Kind.
So far as known, this is the first attempt to follow Mr. Hughes' advice. The action is brought in the district court of Norman county, Minnesota, and will be tried at Ada at the next term of court there. The case has been turned over to the Tong freight

RUSS CITIES CROWDED WITH ALIEN VISITORS

Foreigners a Curiosity in Russia Few Years Ago

Travelers Expect Primitive Life When Going to Petrograd

Moscow, Aug. 6.—Russian isolation is ended. Three years ago the presence of a foreign visitor in Moscow or Petrograd was sufficient to cause the native populace to stare at him as if he were a being from some other world. Two years ago foreigners were still so rare that the few American and British newspaper correspondents scented a story in each of them and tried to interview all who came to Russia. Last year they were still sufficiently rare to arouse some curiosity.

But today, Moscow, Petrograd and the other principal cities are thickly sprinkled with foreigners; daily trains from the outside bring them in by the dozens, and they arouse no more interest than they would in any other European capital. During June more than 1,000 foreigners visited Petrograd, and even more, perhaps, came to Moscow. Most all of them were business seekers.

CANADA SHIPS AUTOS TO U. S.

Increases Automobile Trade 53 Per Cent Over 1921

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 6.—Automobiles manufactured in Canada numbered 101,007 in 1922, according to a report just compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This year's increase of 53 per cent over the 1921 output.

The total value of the cars manufactured, the figures show, was $31,026,428. Capital invested in the industry amounted to $13,231,084. Materials utilized in construction had a value of $54,408,719. Wages amounted to $18,331,084 and 7,334 persons were employed in the industry during the year.

The automobile industry has experienced a remarkable development in Canada in the last five years. Production has practically doubled since 1917. Capital invested has increased nearly 100 per cent in the period, and the value of production has grown from $54,408,719 to $18,331,084.

Most of the automobiles manufactured in Canada are sold in the Dominion, although a prosperous export trade is being built up with South America, the United Kingdom, Australia, South Africa, Mexico, Norway, Sweden and the Netherlands. Automobiles registered in Canada now number 514,972. The Dominion stands second to the United States as the greatest automobile owning nation.

Canada, like the United States, has a large percentage of automobiles on "arms." In many districts in the prairie provinces where settlement has been rapid in recent years, nearly 75 per cent of the automobiles are owned on farms.

Brides Cost But $4 in Ancient Egypt

London, Aug. 6.—Professor W. Flinders Petrie, the eminent Egyptologist who was recently knighted by King George, gives some interesting information regarding the private life of the ancient Egyptians. The earliest marriage contract known in Egypt, he says, dates from 500 B. C. The terms of the pact, as drawn up by the husband, were as follows:

"Since God willeth that we should unite one with the other in righteous wedlock, after the manner of every free man and every wise woman, therefore I have given thee four dollars in gold as a bridal gift, and thou mayest come and enter my house as a free woman. And for my part I will not neglect thee more than as it were my own body. Neither shall I be able to put thee forth without a cause, having legal ground. But should I wish to put thee forth, I will pay 17 dollars for the matter."

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE ATTEND FUNERAL RITES

Major McLaughlin, Famous Inspector Indian Service, Buried at McLaughlin

MANY INDIANS PRESENT

(McLaughlin, S. D., Messenger.)
The remains of Major James McLaughlin who died Saturday at Washington, D. C., arrived in McLaughlin accompanied by F. H. Daiker of the Indian Bureau, who remained for the funeral as the official representative of the government. The body was met at Aberdeen Wednesday by Sidney, Melba and Buzz McLaughlin, grandchildren of the deceased.
The body was brought from the train to the home of R. S. McLaughlin, and Friday morning was taken to St. Bernard's church where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Bernard of Fort Yates, assisted by Fr. Cassidy of Mohrville, and Fr. Bruno of Fort Yates. The body lay in state in the church until 1 p. m. when the funeral services were held.
A detail from the Standing Rock Post of the American Legion, in uniform, met the train when it arrived and escorted the body to the residence. The American Legion also escorted the body from the residence to the church this morning and took part in the funeral services.
Interment was made in the family plot in the local cemetery where three children of the deceased have been laid to rest. It was the wish of Major McLaughlin that he should be laid away on the gentle sloping hillside of the graveyard in the prairie city that bears his name, and he made arrangements to this end several years ago when he had the remains of his children buried elsewhere, moved here.
Indians from everywhere on the Standing Rock reservation came for the funeral. All business was suspended in Fort Yates and Superintendent Mossman and the entire force of Agency employees were present.
Among others from out of the city who were here for the funeral are D. F. Barry of Superior, Wis., Chas. Ziebach, A. C. Wells and Phillip Wells of Fort Thompson, South Dakota; Judge Hanley, Major Welsh and Chas. McDonald of Mandan, J. M. Carignan of Fort Yates, Wm. Pamplin of Selfridge, and many others.
The inside history of Major McLaughlin's promotion from Indian Agent at Devils Lake to Standing Rock reservation is best stated in the language of D. F. Barry of Superior, Wis., noted Indian photographer, and for many years a resident of Fort Yates, where he formed a close friendship with Major McLaughlin, which continued to the last. Mr. Barry says:
"After the Custer massacre in 1876, the Indian leaders were held as prisoners of war at Fort Buford, N. D. Finally the secretary of war ordered the chiefs taken to the Standing Rock reservation. For a time the Indian authorities were at a loss to decide on a man to take charge of the hostile Indians, but finally Major McLaughlin, then agent at Devils Lake, was ordered to Standing Rock."
"I doubt if any other living man could have handled Sitting Bull," said Mr. Barry. "I remember on one occasion when a council was being held at the council house at Standing Rock, Sitting Bull became enraged at George Fairbault, the assistant agent and ordered his followers to kill and throw him in the Missouri river."
"Major McLaughlin arose and told Sitting Bull not to do that. Then he ordered Paul Bloom, who was a cousin of Mrs. H. H. Grace of Superior, to bring him his pistols. Bloom did so, Sitting Bull ordered Fairbault to dispose of, and again the major ordered him to desist. This time the chief complied with his command."
Major McLaughlin held commissions from 12 presidents of the United States, and concluded more treaties with the Indians than any other official in the history of the country.
On July 24, 1920, he entered upon his fiftieth year of continuous service in the Interior Department, and was eligible for retirement. On this occasion the Washington Evening Star under date of August 20, 1920, said:
"Major James McLaughlin, friend of the Indian, who is rounding out his fiftieth year of continuous service in the Interior Department and who is eligible for retirement, is going to be retained because Uncle Sam needs him. "On account of efficient service," John Barton Payne, Secretary of the Interior, recommended that Maj. McLaughlin be continued on the active roll, and the Civil Service Commission has approved the recommendation."
"On July 1 next he will complete a half century of service, practically all of which has been in connection with Indian affairs. His record shows that he has negotiated more Indian treaties than any other official of the government."

SENATOR URGES SINGLE TERM FOR PRESIDENTS

Strain of Position Too Much For More Than Four Years

Chicago, Aug. 7.—A federal amendment limiting future presidents to one term was advocated here by Senator Albert Cummins, Republican, Iowa, president pro-tem of the United States Senate. Senator Cummins was enroute to Washington to aid in preparations for President Harding's funeral.
"Of course, President Harding would have been re-nominated had he lived," said Senator Cummins, "but I have always believed that one term is enough. The great responsibility and the strain of the office are more than any man can stand. The President of the United States is required to exert himself almost beyond the bounds of human limitations. His cares and worries break him down. Human frailties are too great to stand the strain which the Presidency imposes upon a man. We should limit the presidency to one term. It might be made a six-year term but I am not sure about that, even."

Barnes, when surrounded in a shack in the hills fled to a field but was caught. Bontcher was taken near Hecla. # DARWIN URGES REFORMERS TO CEASE UPLIFT

Do More Harm Than Good, Says Descendant of Great Scientist

HARM BEING DONE

Propagating the Inferior of Society Instead of Superior

London, Aug. 7.—Social reformers as a class do much more harm than good, according to Professor Leonard Darwin, and society would improve much faster if they ceased to worry about it and let it go its own way.
Professor Darwin is a son of the great Charles Darwin, and it is natural that he should hold strong views on the survival of the fittest and how this best can be accomplished. He says that the misguided efforts of many sincere and earnest social reformers really result in encouraging the continuance of race inferiority and deterioration, which is just the reverse of what they are trying to do. In a recent speech before the Eugenic Education Society, of which he is president, he dwelt upon the harm he thought social reformers were doing.
"Male Selection" was the title of Professor Darwin's address. He was not sure that male selection, in the present state of society, was good for the future of the race, and argued that when the fit married the fit they tended to have smaller families, while the inferior people continued producing unfit types which became more marked.
"To secure human progress," he said, "the inferior types must be eliminated, and all that should be demanded is that this process be made as little painful as possible." Pity for others and solicitude for their liberty the speaker regarded as among the things that constituted obstacles in the way of racial improvement.
"The philanthropists of today, however," Professor Darwin said, "only look on one side of the question, and entirely ignore the racial effects of the reforms they are advocating."
Both out-of-work doles to those constitutionally incapable of work, and out-door relief generally, if given without regard to the probability of parenthood in the future, would directly tend to promote the inferiority of the race in the future.

Sell Bernhard's Home in France

Paris, Aug. 7.—The late Sarah Bernhard often tried to sell her country house on Belle-Ile, off the coast of Brittany, but she never found a purchaser. The property includes a farm, an old fort and a rock strewn piece of shore front.
Within a few weeks of her death, however, a buyer was found at $50,000 francs, somewhere about $20,000. He intends to turn the house into a summer hotel, and will have a jazz band and dancing on the first floor before the present season is over.
The mayor of Palais, the port of the little island, has hoped that the municipality would acquire the property and convert it into a Bernhard museum, but the sale was put through before he could get his plan before the public.

LAW ALONE WON'T SOLVE N. D. PROBLEMS

New Method of Farming Is to be the Making of Great State, Says Devine

CITES TWO EXAMPLES

Wisconsin and Minnesota Counties Went Through Same Process as N. D.

New methods of farming, not legislation, are needed in North Dakota, Commissioner of Immigration J. M. Devine declared here this afternoon before the lumbermen of this section of the state, meeting to form a division of the Northwestern Lumbermen's Association.

"North Dakota as an agricultural state will never come to the period of solid, lasting prosperity until the day and time when the cow, corn, sheep, poultry and eggs have a proper and rightful place in the daily activities of every farm within the borders of our state," said Mr. Devine. "Wheat raising as a single truck proposition has failed in North Dakota, as it had previously failed in every middlewestern state to the Ohio river, hog raising, wheat raising will always be a large factor in the agricultural production of our state, but with diversified farming there will be much less acreage, a cleaner, better quality and more bushels to the acre, commanding a better price."

Law Won't Do It

"Laws have been enacted and others may be, both at Bismarck and Washington, D. C., yet in the final analysis such laws will act only as a temporary expedient. They will remedy no real existing evil, right no real existing wrong. They encourage false hopes while the discouraged farmer continues to plot his weary way, looking for the legalized haven of prosperity and contentment. There is a remedy and that remedy is the milk cow, corn, hogs, silage, sheep, butter and eggs—put some of them or all of them at work on the farm and they will not fail the farmer in his hour of need since they never have."

"These things are practically an all-year producing proposition and especially the cow. Wheat is a four-months guess, the cow dead sure. Wheat is a mortgage producer, the cow a mortgage lifter. A mortgage works industriously all the time, so does the cow. The North Dakota farm can produce as good a cow, and that cow will produce as much butter-fat as any like cow in New York, Wisconsin or Minnesota, and it will cost as little overhead expense."

North Dakota, Mr. Devine said, can produce as good a hog and round it up for the market in as short time with our own corn as can Illinois or Iowa. No section in the country can excel North Dakota as a poultry state.

"Barron county, Wisconsin, last year with a population of thirty-five thousand people sold $7,200,000 worth of cream, butter and cheese. Forty years ago it was a one-tract poverty stricken country," said Mr. Devine. He also said McLeod county, Minnesota, sold $2,700,000 worth of dairy products in 1922. Thirty-five years ago the county was a wheat producing county, but by reason of drought, chinch bugs, grasshoppers farms were being abandoned.

What Two Counties Did

"What Barron county and McLeod county can do, we can and should do," he said. "There is nothing fundamentally wrong with our state, in soil, climate or the great heart of the people who live in it. Indeed, there is every reason to be thankful that we are North Dakotans and live in a state that has made such rapid strides in all those things which go to make up a great and progressive commonwealth."

Eighteen of twenty-nine million acres of land in North Dakota is under cultivation, Mr. Devine said. State institutions and other facilities are sufficient for a population of 2,000,000 people."

"The tax is high and burdensome since there is but 600,000 people to pay the bill," he said. "It is evident we need more people, more additional taxpayers. The millions of our uncultivated acres should have homes on them and families—a good class living in them. Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin have such a class of renting farmers, paying from $10 to $15 an acre. These farmers can and should by intelligent, earnest effort on the part of the state, find homes and farms within our borders that they may call their own and on the best and cheapest land in the world."

Genuine cooperation between farmers and business men in solving our agricultural problems was urged.

MARKET NEWS TRADING LIGHT EARLY TODAY

Waiting for Government Wheat Report After Market Close

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Owing to the fact that the government crop report was due after the close, wheat trading today restricted their trading largely to evening up of open accounts and there was no decided change in price during the early dealings. Bears pointed out that stocks of wheat were likely to continue piling up for some weeks and that export demand was slow. On the other hand bulls contended that before another crop all the wheat in the United States would be needed for domestic consumers. The opening which ranged from 1-1/2 to 1-3/4 cent gain with September at $1.08 1/2 to $1.09 1/4 and December at $1.08 1/4 to $1.09 1/4 was succeeded by something of a general sag and then a little rise all around.

France Revives Ancient Code

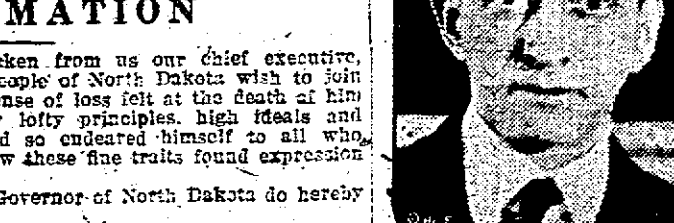

Paris, Aug. 7.—Paris has taken one more step back to pre-war conditions by reviving duelling. Two barristers who insisted on settling a personal difference by duelling swords, revived a procedure which, since the war, has appeared ridiculous even in the eyes of the French, who still maintain that there are some disputes that can only be decided "on the field of honor."

General opinion, however, is still against duelling for anything short of the gravest reasons, and one writer regretting its revival has suggested that a new article in the duelling code should prescribe that encounters can only take place in the devastated regions, close to a battlefield or in a military cemetery. "Few are the adversaries," he says, "who facing the wooden crosses of so many Frenchmen killed in the most formidable duel in history, will not find their own quarrel ludicrous and fall in each other's arms."

With special diving apparatus depths of over 200 feet have been attained, but few divers can work at 150 feet, where the pressure is 65 pounds to the square inch.

TURK TREATY TO OPEN NEW ERA IN EAST

American Representative Expresses Belief That It Means Cooperation

BOTH PARTIES SIGN

Ismet Pasha Lays Emphasis Upon Ties of Democracy Binding Nations

Lausanne, Aug. 7.—(By the Associated Press)—With the ratification of two treaties signed yesterday, the relations between the United States and Turkey enter upon a new era. Joseph C. Grew, American representative, in a brief address after the signature, declared that the conventions permit of "close and useful cooperation between the two countries."

Mr. Grew recalled that during the past few years Turkey has been the scene of events of far reaching significance, and as consequence, her relations with other countries have been greatly modified. Her system of government, her political ideals changed, and it seemed fitting that these changes should furnish the occasion and reason for the conclusion of treaties with the United States. Ismet Pasha laid emphasis on ties of democracy binding the United States and Turkey. He depicted Turkey as a "new Turkey," and a land whose government was based on the will of the people; hence his pleasure on entering on friendly and cooperative relations with the great American republic.

Two treaties, one general and the other relating to extradition, printed in French, were signed by Mr. Grew, Ismet Pasha, Biza Nur Bey and Hassan Bey. The two delegations sat around a table in the drawing room of the Ouchy Hotel and solemnly affixed their signatures in the presence of a small group of Americans and others.

In the general conversation the contracting parties agree to terminate all treaties existing between them and capitulations are completely abrogated. Each party agrees to receive diplomatic and consular representatives who will be accorded most favored national treatment. Citizens of the United States will be entitled to travel and reside in Turkey on condition that they comply with laws of the country, and to engage in professional, commercial and industrial activities permitted by law to foreigners, and will be assured of the most complete protection of person and property in accordance with the standards of international law.

By way of special recognition it is provided in the treaty with European states, that Americans with regard to matters of personal status shall be subject only to American courts. American companies also will be given the right to engage in business in Turkey. The treaty provides complete liberty of commerce and navigation and accords the most favored nation treatment with regard to the prohibition, restrictions and conditions of every kind on import duties and excise taxes.

The provision concerning the amount and the collection of duties on imports and exports is said to be of particular interest to American commerce, as it accords the most favored nation treatment unconditionally, regardless of whether special favors and facilities are granted by either country gratuitously or in return for reciprocal compensatory treatment.

The final difficulty over claims of Americans for damage to property will eventually be settled by agreement, to keep the question outside the treaty. Instead, a compact is agreed upon whereby the two governments mutually undertake to resume negotiations as soon as possible after a period of twenty days, each government reserving its rights.

FUNERAL TRAIN MOVES SLOWLY THROUGH EAST

At each officer's sword hilt rested a cluster of crepe that will stay there a month in token of the nation's loss. The colors will bear long streamers of black within the station.

President Coolidge and cabinet members were to take their places to greet the train out in the long shed. The great concourse with its high glass roof was to be swept clear of all but the official group and those immediately connected with the sorrowful functions.

The funeral program calls for no ceremony or greetings at the train or elsewhere except for the strains of the band and the salute of troops outside. There was to be the slow walk behind the casket down the silent concourse and cut through the President's room to the waiting gun carriage.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Father Dearborn bowed his head in mourning yesterday as the nation's burden of sorrow reached Chicago.

Through miles upon miles of people, the funeral train bearing the body of Warren G. Harding passed scarcely faster than a man, might walk.

Fifteen miles from the great railroad terminals, the bare-headed throngs grew dense as the funeral cortege drew near to the largest city through which it will pass.

Slowly the black draped engine moved through the great throngs at times so dense that they were crowded on to the tracks in front of the funeral cortege even as they tried to make a path for the train of mourning.

The pottery has been found for the most part under the floors of the ruins of ancient buildings, and commercial exploitation of the material has become so widespread that the valley ruins are being rapidly demolished and the instructive archaeological objects lost to science. One reason for Dr. Fewkes' visit was to make a collection for the National Museum before the supply was exhausted.

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE ATTEND FUNERAL RITES

Major McLaughlin, Famous Inspector Indian Service, Buried at McLaughlin

MANY INDIANS PRESENT

(McLaughlin, S. D. Messenger.)

The remains of Major James McLaughlin who died Saturday at Washington, D. C., arrived in McLaughlin accompanied by F. H. Dalkner of the Indian Bureau, who remained for the funeral as the official representative of the government. The body was met at Aberdeen Wednesday by Sidney, Milda and Buzz McLaughlin, grandchildren of the deceased.

The body was brought from the train to the home of R. S. McLaughlin, and Friday morning was taken to St. Bernard's church where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Bernard of Fort Yates, assisted by Fr. Cassidy of Mobridge, and Fr. Bruno of Fort Yates. The body lay in state in the church until 1 p. m., when the funeral services were held.

A detail from the Standing Rock Post of the American Legion, in uniform, met the train when it arrived and escorted the body to the residence. The American Legion also escorted the body from the residence to the church this morning and took part in the funeral services.

Interment was made in the family plot in the local cemetery where three children of the deceased have been laid to rest. It was the wish of Major McLaughlin that he should be laid away on a gentle sloping hillside of the cemetery in the prairie city that bears his name, and he made arrangements to this end several years ago when he had the remains of his children buried elsewhere, moved here.

Indians from everywhere on the Standing Rock reservation came for the funeral. All business was suspended in Fort Yates and Superintendent Moorman and the entire force of Agency employees were present.

Among others from out of the city who were here for the funeral are D. F. Barry of Superior, Wis., Chas. Ziebach, A. C. Wells and Phillip Wells of Fort Thompson, South Dakota; Judge Hanley, Major Welch and Chas. McDonald of Mandan, J. M. Carignan of Fort Yates, Wm. Pamplin of Selfridge, and many others.

The inside history of Major McLaughlin's promotion from Indian Agent at Devils Lake to Standing Rock reservation is best stated in the language of D. F. Barry of Superior, Wis., noted Indian photographer, and for many years a resident of Fort Yates where he formed a close friendship with Major McLaughlin, which continued to the last. Mr. Barry says:

"After the Custer massacre in 1876, the Indian leaders were held as prisoners of war at Fort Buford, N. D. Finally the secretary of war ordered the chiefs taken to the Standing Rock reservation. For a time the Indian authorities were at a loss to decide on a man to take charge of the hostile Indians, but finally Major McLaughlin, then agent at Devils Lake, was ordered to Standing Rock."

"I doubt if any other living man could have handled Sitting Bull," said Mr. Barry. "I remember on one occasion when a council was being held at the council house at Standing Rock, Sitting Bull became enraged at George Fairbault, the assistant agent and ordered his followers to kill and throw him in the Missouri river."

"Major McLaughlin arose and told Sitting Bull not to do that. Then he ordered Paul Blood, who was a cousin of Mrs. H. H. Grace of Superior, to bring him his pistols. Blood did so, Sitting Bull ordered Fairbault disposed of, and again the major ordered him to desist. This time the chief complied with his command."

Major McLaughlin held commissions from 12 presidents of the United States, and concluded more treaties with the Indians than any other official in the history of the country.

On July 1st, 1920, he entered upon his fiftieth year of continuous service in the Interior Department, and was eligible for retirement. On this occasion the Washington Evening Star under date of August 30, 1920, said:

"Major James McLaughlin, friend of the Indian, who is rounding out his fiftieth year of continuous service in the Interior Department and who is eligible for retirement, is going to be retained because Uncle Sam needs him." "On account of efficient service," John Barton Payne, Secretary of the Interior, recommended that Maj. McLaughlin be continued on the active roll, and the Civil Service Commission has approved the recommendation."

"On July 1 next he will complete a half century of service, practically all of which has been in connection with Indian affairs. His record shows that he has negotiated more Indian treaties than any other official of the government."

A fire in the basement of the Mandan Candy factory premises in the three-story Gill block in the east end of the city Saturday night caused a loss of between $5,000 and $7,000.

Let Contract For Fair Building

Dickinson, Aug. 7.—Contracts for the construction of a new exhibit building and a roof over the grandstand were let this week by the executive committee of the Stark County Fair association. The contract for the exhibit building was let to the George Heaton Lumber company. The Walton & Davis company will build the grandstand roof. In both instances contracts were let to the lowest bidder. Work will begin immediately.

The exhibit building will be erected on the foundation and floor laid last year. It will be the same size as the administration building and will be used for agricultural exhibits. Complete it will cost in the neighborhood of $2,500.

The placing of the roof on the grandstand will give the fair association one of the largest and finest structures of this kind in the state. The grandstand has a seating capacity of more than 1,000 persons.

More than $2,000 has been set aside in purses for the racing programs to be held on all three days of the fair. The committee is now busy arranging a card that should attract some of the finest and fastest horses in the northwest. The tentative card provides purses for 2:20 pace or trot, running races, pony races and auto races for stock cars and "bugs."

Various other attractions are being arranged for and the committee is putting forth every effort to see that there will be something doing every minute during all three days of the fair.

The band is made up of 45 boys and girls of Buxton under the direction of Arthur R. Thompson, superintendent of schools. The group traveled in their own trucks and slept in tents. In their tour of North Dakota and Minnesota, the two states in which their tour was restricted, four appearances were made in Minneapolis, one of which was an encore concert.

LaMoore, N. D., Aug. 7.—William Barnes and Charles Beutcher, who about two weeks ago sawed their way from the LaMoore county jail were recaptured in the Sand hills near Newark, S. Barnes, when surrounded in a shack in the hills fled to a field but was caught. Beutcher was taken near Recla. Officials believed that the sandhill country where the men were taken has been a rendezvous for a gang of thieves operating in the two states.

DARWIN URGES REFORMERS TO CEASE UPLIFT

Do More Harm Than Good, Says Descendant of Great Scientist

HARM BEING DONE

Propagating the Inferior of Society Instead of Superior

London, Aug. 7.—Social reformers as a class do much more harm than good, according to Professor Leonard Darwin, and society would improve much faster if they ceased to worry about it and let it go its own way.

Professor Darwin is a son of the great Charles Darwin, and it is natural that he should hold strong views on the survival of the fittest and how this best can be accomplished. He says that the misguided efforts of many altruists and earnest social reformers really result in encouraging the continuance of race inferiority and deterioration, which is just the reverse of what they are trying to do. In a recent speech before the Eugenik Education Society, of which he is president, he dwelt upon the harm he thought social reformers were doing.

"Mate Selection" was the title of Professor Darwin's address. He was not sure that mate selection, in the present state of society, was good for the future of the race, and argued that when the fit married the fit they tended to have smaller families, while the inferior people continued producing unfit types which became more marked.

"To secure human progress," he said, "the inferior types must be eliminated, and all that should be demanded is that this process be made as little painful as possible." Pity for others and solicitude for their liberty the speaker regarded as among the things that constituted obstacles in the way of racial improvement.

"The philanthropists of today, however," Professor Darwin said "only look on one side of the question, and entirely ignore the racial effects of the reforms they are advocating."

Both out-of-work doles to those constitutionally incapable of work, and out-door relief generally, if given without regard to the probability of parenthood in the future, would directly tend to promote the inferiority of the race in the future.

Motherhood endowment, the naturally superior and unfit alike, these and other methods of relieving distress, would have the same result, he contended.

Altogether, as viewed by Professor Darwin, there seemed to be a pretty blue outlook for the world generally, and even enlightened eugenists appeared to be able to find little comfort in his views.

But Professor Darwin said his objection to mate selection would disappear if "by some method less cruel than that of natural selection the inferior stocks could be made to multiply less quickly than the superior."

Sell Bernhard's Home in France

Paris, Aug. 7.—The late Sarah Bernhard often tried to sell her country house on Belle-Ile, off the coast of Brittany, but she never found a purchaser. The property includes a farm, an old fort and a rock strewn place of shore front.

Within a few weeks of her death, however, a buyer was found at $50,000 francs, somewhere about $20,000. He intends to turn the house into a summer hotel, and will have a jazz band and dancing on the first floor before the present season is over.

The year of 1914, the year of the little island, has hoped that the municipality would acquire the property and convert it into a Bernhard museum, but the sale was put through before he could get his plan before the public.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

ENDLESS CHAIN

Western Europe's population increased 6 million between 1910 and 1920, despite its loss of about 20 million lives in connection with the war and Spanish influenza.

This fact, announced by mortality statisticians, shows that nature already has more than restored Europe to normal in the matter of its most important loss—human life. This, of course, will not become vividly noticeable until the babies and young children of the present grow to manhood and womanhood. Right now there is a decided shortage of grown men "over there."

France checks up and find that last year it had 759,846 births, against 689,267 deaths. This was a population gain of close to 71,000, with the birth and death rates almost identically the same as they were in 1913.

But France's population is increasing so slowly that her military heads are worried.

They have not forgotten that, in the 50 years before the World War, Germany's population nearly doubled while France's showed very little increase.

France's nightmare is the German Cradle.

In the early days of the war, France began to have more deaths than births. Austria found itself in the same fix in 1915, Belgium in 1916, Germany in 1917 and Italy in 1918.

The only important European warring country that did not fall victim to diminishing population during the war was England. It had more births than deaths dropped from 377,000 in 1913 to as low as 50,000 in 1918. The figures in 1922 had crawled up to 293,000.

The British will "come back" rapidly in the matter of man-power. Their death rate in the last 20 years has been reduced from 17 for each thousand to 13.

Watch the birth and death statistics if you want to keep close tab on the European situation. The militarists still control Europe, and their concessions in the direction of peace, also their degree of insistence on war preparations, are regulated by the supply of available cannon fodder, as compared with the enemy's.

The baby in its cradle represents the foremost armament.

PENROD

High school girls spend an average of $4.15 a week apiece, boys $2.53, according to a check up in Boston.

This may rile old-timers who recall when many a high school lad wore pa's old suit made over by ma. In fairness to the youngsters, though: The decreased buying power of the dollar makes it necessary to divide spendings by two or three to make a just compensation with the former generation's youthful pin-money.

The Boston average budget disclosed that boys spend 14 cents a week apiece for cigarettes, girls half as much.

How long since you've seen a boy mowing a lawn or collecting junk.

DIAMONDS

Americans are importing diamonds at the rate of 65 million dollars worth a year. But that's only about 60 cents a year for each of us—5 cents a month—which certainly isn't extravagance in the modern sense. Making allowances for increased prices, the nation doesn't seem to be buying more than before the war.

The figures quoted are wholesale prices, not what the consumer pays. But, even at that, the price of several movies matches our diamond bill. We throw our diamond money several times over into the garbage pail.

CHINESE

Essex Market Court in New York, which has been trying prisoners for more than a century, receives the first drunken Chinese in its history. Did you ever see a drunken oriental?

The widespread use of drugs among the Chinese, however, suggests that the scarcity of Chinese drunkards may be less a matter of temperance and moderation than of nerves. Chinese have no nerves, in the white man's sense, most of them being able to undergo severe operations without anesthetic. This contrast will show itself in many forms as the two races increasingly come in contact with each other commercially.

OIL

Mexican oil is eclipsed by the geysers of flowing gold in the big California fields. Oil exports from Mexico in the first six months of 1923 were a third less than the total of the corresponding months of a year ago.

Mexico begins checking out. California comes in. Don't ever worry about an oil famine. When California oil fizzles, other fields will be opened up. That has been the experience in the industry since Colonel Drake drilled the first well.

BORROWERS

We are a nation of borrowers, as lawnmower owners already know. Loans of all banks in the country now total around 32 billion dollars or enough to put every American man, woman and child in debt $300.

Comparing this with the average income, the American people—by the bank loan route—have their earnings mortgaged six months ahead.

WHEAT

A world grain expert figures there are 50 million more bushels of wheat available in the leading countries this year than in 1922. Since the world is not apt to eat that much more wheat, it is rather obvious that the slump in wheat prices has been partly due to this surplus.

Overproduction is the farmer's chief problem.

THE NEW PRESIDENT

It is partly good fortune and partly a growing appreciation of the importance of the Vice Presidency that have given us President Coolidge and his capable hand on the helm of the ship of state at this critical juncture.

Both of the National Conventions in 1920 balanced their tickets with strong men—the Republicans with Calvin Coolidge, the Democrats with Franklin Roosevelt. They did not, as so many national conventions before them had done, regard the second place as one to be filled with a geographical makeweight or a political harmonizer. Each sought to name a man who would not only bring strength to the ticket, but would prove, if destiny called for Presidential size.

Particularly was this the feeling at Chicago, when Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts, who had already figured in the Presidential list of availables, was selected for second place by a preponderant majority.

We have had in all six Presidents who have succeeded to the office by death of the incumbent. Neither Tyler, Fillmore nor Johnson rose to the greatness of the office, and all were the causes of great political irritation. All of Tyler's Cabinet except Webster resigned, when he vetoed measures supported by the Whig Party, which had nominated him. Fillmore gave great offense to the Northern Whigs by signing the Fugitive Slave Law. He afterward ran for President in 1856 as candidate of the American Party, and received only the electoral vote of Maryland. Johnson came near wrecking the Union after Lincoln had saved it, and barely escaped impeachment.

Arthur made a dignified and capable President, yet when named for Vice President, he was an office-holding henchman of Conkling and Platt, whom the victorious Blaine faction desired to placate in support of Garfield. Roosevelt was, of course, the exception. Vice President, who made such a great President, who was re-elected with but feeble opposition. Calvin Coolidge is a strong, firm, well-disciplined publicist. He brings not only high character, but great experience to the task. Owing to Mr. Harding's wise provision, he has been in effect a member of the Cabinet without portfolio, attending the semi-weekly meetings, consulted and conferred with by his chief, privy to all the inner workings of the Administration, and close student of all its problems.

As Mayor of his home town, as Legislator and then Governor of his State he had already shown himself a master in the handling of administrative and legislative problems as well as a trusted leader of men. The instant decision with which he squelched the Boston police strike won him national recognition.

The new President, with characteristic promptness, has pledged himself to retain the advisers and push the policies of the Harding Administration. Roosevelt did the same thing when he succeeded McKinley and kept his word as well as any man invested with such grave responsibilities could have done.

In like manner President Coolidge may be expected to follow the general lines of the Administration in which he has been an active consultant. But new situations and new emergencies are bound to arise and he may be expected to meet them with wise determination.

His task, which would not have been easy if he had been elected to the Presidency, is made even more difficult by the fact that at every juncture he must ask himself, What would Harding have done?

But President Coolidge is able, alert, judicious. He is likely to carry his brief Administration through the next nineteen months with true Yankee skill. Minneapolis Journal.

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO MRS. MARY ALDEN PRESCOTT

MY DEAR MRS. PRESCOTT:

I think I should have written you before this, but no doubt your son has kept you posted and you know how dreadfully ill Leslie has been.

She is still far from well and we are very much worried over her mind. She seems to have developed almost a case of melancholia. She says no attention to anything or anybody, not even poor Jack, who seems broken-hearted. He has grown very thin, and I do wish that I could persuade him to go away for a little while.

However, he would not leave Leslie for anything, I am sure. He comes in when she is asleep and sits beside her bed, her hand in his, for hours at a time. But just the moment she stirs as though she were going to awake he steals away, as though he is afraid that even his presence worries her.

Jack has probably told you that Leslie lost her baby after the accident. The poor child had not accented. Jack anything about her great expectation, as she seemed to have gotten it into her head that he would not be pleased. She kept the wonderful secret to herself, and consequently, since the automobile accident, she has never asked Jack anything about it.

I wish she would do so. It would be such a comfort to her, I know, to have her husband take her in his arms and tell her how sorry he is for her. They seem, both of them, to be laboring under mistaken ideas of helping each other. You and I, my dear Mrs. Prescott, know that the nearer one can come to sharing all one's secrets with one's husband or wife, the better both can reach great happiness.

Jack has told me you have been quite ill. I am very sorry, and I am writing this letter so you will not think I am quite a savage in not asking about your health before, but I have been so concerned over my daughter and so busy trying to minister to her mind, as well as to her body, that I have thought of little else.

Jack has told me you met Karl Whitney at your house while Leslie was there. Perhaps you will be interested to know that he has gone abroad to London, where my second daughter, Alice, is staying with the Stockleys. You, I am sure, will remember Alice as a typical American girl. The letters she writes me are most diverting, the last one particularly so. Ordinarily Leslie would be much interested, and pleased with them, but the last one which I received from Alice did not awaken a smile from her.

Jack and I have come to the decision today that tomorrow I shall go and find a healthy young baby and bring it to Leslie. If she shows the slightest inclination for it, Jack will adopt it. Dr. Samson seems to think this is the only thing that will do her any good. He says if something is not done very soon to awaken her mind to things about her, he fears for her life, if not her sanity. You can see, of course, we are very much worried.

I will write you immediately after Leslie has seen the baby and let you know how she takes it.

Most sincerely yours,
ALICE CARTON HAMILTON.

Do not, I beg of you, adopt a baby until you hear from me.

"There's another of my subjects missing," said King Snookums to Nancy and Nick.

"Who is it now?" asked Nancy.

"It's my wife," said King Snookums sadly. "Missus Snookums. I mean Queen Snookums. That's what we quarreled about. I wanted her to have Missus Snookums on her calling cards and she insisted on having Queen Snookums. I am sorry as anything that I didn't let her have her own way."

"But I didn't know queens ever called," said Nancy.

"They do," nodded King Snookums. "On other queens. Well, anyway, she's gone."

"Oh, don't worry, we'll find her. Haven't we found all your other missing subjects?" Nancy wanted to know.

"Didn't we find your lord high chancellor sticking in the leg on a cake and another Pee Wee sticking on the fly paper, and—"

"Yes, yes, yes!" said the king. "Oh, yes indeed! But they weren't my wife. When she gets insulted she stays insulted for six months and ten days and twenty-seven minutes. Why she was so cross she put on her best riding suit and sent to the stable for her fastest fly and off she rode. Oh, oh, I'll never see her again—at least for six months and ten days and twenty-seven minutes."

"Shucks!" said Nancy. "Come on, Nick. We'll find her."

They looked everywhere, so they

THE YELLOW SEVEN
China Tea!

NEA Service, Inc. 1923

By Edmund Sael.

This unusual series of stories deals with the exploits of "Chinese" Pennington, a detective sent by his government to British North Borneo to run to earth The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits.

A Chinaman leant warily on the rail of a bamboo bridge, gazing downward at an oozing sea of black mud. Beyond the narrow barrier of coco-palms, an ocean of azure was stretching, leaving an ever-widening stretch of glittering and where a turbaned syce exercised a Bajou pony.

The bridge that spanned the swamp served as a link between the shore and the mainland and from the inner extremity an ill-defined path wound through stunted forest-wastes, teeming with chattering monkey.

The student of character, here was the prosperous Chinese trader come to keep an appointment he had made with someone, possibly a stranger to the district. He had selected an unmistakable landmark for his rendezvous. He wore a white drill tunic, buttoned up to the neck, wide-legged trousers of rustling black silk, and boots with elastic sides. An umbrella of oiled paper—yellow inside and red without—was tucked under one arm, and a solar topee of surprising whiteness contrasted strangely with the swarthy skin beneath.

The thundering of a pony's hooves died away into the distance, a sudden, momentary silence fell upon the hidden monkey-colonies, and the figure of a white man appeared at an opening between the trees. He stood for a moment gazing round him, then he came forward, still upon the still form on the bridge. It was perhaps strange that at the very moment the Englishman's eyes were turned in his direction, the Oriental should become aware of the piercing rays of a tropic sun—and open the umbrella for which he had hitherto found no use!

The newcomer started visibly and came forward with swift strides until he halted within a couple of feet of the Chinaman.

"Morning, Hewitt," said the Celestial in surprisingly good English. "Glad you managed to roll up."

The Commissioner of Police started.

"Good Lord, Pennington! I didn't know you."

"That's precisely as it should be," returned the other. "I'm delighted to see you, but for one thing, I know you'd like to be in at the death and, for another, I've a hazy notion in the back of my mind that you don't altogether agree with my methods."

Captain John Hewitt raised his hand and mopped his forehead.

"I don't venture to contend that you don't give yourself a fair chance. It's perfectly natural for you to want all the kudos for the capture of Chai-Hung, but you ought to begin to realize by this time, since our murderer friend is not likely to be caught single-handed, besides, this affair's gone on too long. I'm getting chits almost every day from the Governor asking when the Yellow Seven gang is likely to be run to earth. You've had the chances already, you must remember."

The man with the Chinese eyes frowned.

"I've had the luck of the devil," he admitted, "but I'd like to impress on you that, but for me, nobody would have identified Chai-Hung with the gang at all. And," he added defiantly, "there have been a lot less gang murders on the island since I landed."

"There'd be fewer still—if we could bring Chai-Hung to justice."

They left the bridge and, threatening their way through the trees, came presently to a solitary hut, raised high on poles, a bamboo ladder giving access to a hole in the wood-work. It stood in a wide clearing, waist-high withalang, and both men held their hands above their heads to avoid cutting them on the leaves of the treacherous weeds.

Hewitt followed Pennington up the ladder into the single apartment of which the edifice boasted. The latter pushed forward a box and, seating himself contentedly on the rough flooring, felt behind him in some mysterious recess for beer.

"And so," said the Commissioner, withdrawing his lips from the mouth of the bottle with a resounding smack, "I'm to be in at the death, am I?"

Chinese Pennington nodded.

"I'll admit I've been a long time over this job," he said, "but Chai-Hung's a genius. He had every Chinaman on the island under his thumb—once."

"Once?" Hewitt echoed blankly.

"Before I drove him to the black-woods, hounded him to Island N, and cut off his source of supplies effectively. No sort of organization can thrive on air!"

He shifted his position on the bare boards and felt for his pouch.

"How's Monica?" he inquired presently, in every squirrel hole and in every bird nest but one.

That one had a robin on it—just sitting there—and when the Twins came along she called out:

"Someone tried to pluck one of my tail feathers. I'm sitting on her."

"Oh, please let me out," came a muffled voice. "I only wanted one feather for a hat."

"Why, it's Missus Snookums," said Nancy. "If we let you out will you get over being insulted and go home?"

"Yes, yes, yes!" said Nick. "You'd better get up," said Nick to the robin. "You're sitting on a queen."

ently, screwing up his eyes until they disappeared altogether behind those strange diagonal slits that had been directly responsible for the adjective that invariably preceded his name.

The Commissioner smiled.

"Pretty fit. I've got a note for you in one of my pockets." The lines of his handsome face hardened suddenly and he began stroking his black hair with the flat of his hand.

"Look here, Pen. When are you two going to get married. Monica's waiting for her soul out because you're still crowling about, carrying your life in your hand. If you were actually the confounded idiot you appear to be sometimes, I wouldn't tell you all this. I'd be the last man to tell any ordinary fellow that a sister of mine was missing, and on his account. But I'm counting on you to understand my motives. Monica's had a deuce of a hard time up to now, and—I want to see her happy."

Pennington's long fingers closed suddenly over the Commissioner's and held them tightly.

"Thanks," he whispered huskily. "It's uncommon good of you—and I appreciate it. It won't be long now. I swore I'd wait until I'd got Chai-Hung by the heels—and, by heaven!—I mean to have him this time. You understand the most of me, Jack, but you've missed a certain side of my character that, even if I wasn't aware of—until I met her. The white men that the cursed Chinaman has murdered in gold blood lie heavily on my soul. In a queer sort of way, I feel directly responsible for everything Chai-Hung has done since I first came here. His feeling has grown upon me until it's become an obsession. I'm no longer the instrument of a European Power, using my facial peculiarities and knowledge of dialects to wipe out a Chinese faction. It's Pennington against Chai-Hung, his life or mine."

He paused for a moment, the muscles of his face twitching, the points of his fingers pressed together. "I've worked damned hard since I came here. I've had a score of identities. I've posed as a coolie, a Dusun trader, a man-boy, a rickshaw puller, anything—everything."

"I've been in the hands of Chai-Hung's mercenaries—and wriggled out of them again. I've held the bandit twice—and lost him because I was alone and the odds against me were too great. His eyes have been looking at me, strange light. But I've got him this time, Jack, because the luck is on my side at last."

He broke off, trembling with emotion, and the Commissioner, observing him curiously, saw that great bubbling inspiration stood out on his temples.

"Where is he?" he asked quietly.

Pennington was clipping the strychnine of tobacco from a freshly rolled cigarette.

"In a lone hut in a gully with a wall of red rock behind it, and a wall of your agents as I could master watching every possible approach."

Hewitt shook his head.

"Still the persistent optimist," he said, gloomily. "How many times have you drawn in your breath to find that Chai-Hung has escaped it?"

"True, oh King! And yet, old son, I've got Chai-Hung! He's down with fever and none of the followers who still stand by him dare shift him—if they could. A queer thing that, Jack. He who has successfully defied every effort of a white civilization to entrap him, has all but succumbed to the common enemy of us all!"

The Commissioner bent forward until the box on which he sat tilted dangerously.

"How do you know all this?"

"I've seen him!"

Chinese Pennington blew out a thin wreath of blue smoke and watched it as it ascended roofward.

"I scouted round until I bribed one of Chai-Hung's men to take me to his lair. He was as nervous as a cat, and he had a mighty good proposition, and if the fellow had guessed for a moment what I was—he

CAPITOL

"The Ragged Edge," second of Distinctive Pictures' great features of 1923, distributed by Goldwyn, is coming to the Capitol Theatre tonight. This picture is one of the most spectacular stories of the South Seas released this year, and promises to be at the top in beautiful and artistic photography of Southern Pacific and Chinese scenes.

"The Ragged Edge" is by Harold MacGrath, an author of international fame. The story is of "two young fools," one running away from justice and the second from justice. They meet in the city of Canton, China. The boy collapses in the hotel lobby and is nursed back from the ragged edge of death and destruction by the girl. These two waifs of fate marry. They are befriended by a South Sea trader, who takes them to his faraway island. The husband, however, is kept from his wife by a sinister shadow that lies across his remorseless conscience—he is a fugitive and believes it unfair to mar her life. But in a series of breathless episodes they are finally brought together.

The hero's role is ably played by Alfred Lunt, known as one of the handsomest actors on the stage today. He is best known through his great success in the title role of Booth Tarkington's famous comedy, "Clarence," and his wonderful acting in Distinctive's first 1923 feature, "Backbone." Co-starred with Lunt is Mimi Palmeri, whose rise to fame has been one of the romances of the industry, and whose Cinderella-like story has been the talk of fans for months. She is a natural actress and one who, given her chance, rose sublimely to the occasion.

A Willing Worker

Money hidden away in the bureau drawer, home strong box, or bank safety box is unproductive to the owner and valueless to the community.

Funds placed on deposit in a time certificate or a bank savings account work the greatest good for the largest number of people, bringing the depositor a return in the form of interest at the same time making possible the functioning of some productive enterprise. Money is always willing to earn more money if given the opportunity.

(Established 1873)

ENDLESS CHAIN
Western Europe's population increased 6 million between 1910 and 1920, despite its loss of about 20 million lives in connection with the war and Spanish influenza.

This fact, announced by mortality statisticians, shows that nature already has more than restored Europe to normal in the matter of its most important loss—human life. This, of course, will not become vividly noticeable until the babies and young children of the present grow to manhood and womanhood. Right now there is a decided shortage of grown men "over there."

France checks up and find that last year it had 759,846 births, against 689,267 deaths. This was a population gain of close to 71,000, with the birth and death rates almost identically the same as they were in 1913.

But France's population is increasing so slowly that her military heads are worried.

They have not forgotten that, in the 50 years before the World War, Germany's population nearly doubled while France's showed very little increase.

France's nightmare is the German Cradle.

In the early days of the war, France began to have more deaths than births. Austria found itself in the same fix in 1915, Belgium in 1916, Germany in 1917 and Italy in 1918. The only important European warring country that did not fall victim to diminishing population during the war was England. It had more births than deaths all through the war, though the surplus of births over deaths dropped from 377,000 in 1913 to as low as 50,000 in 1918. The figures in 1922 had crawled up to 293,000.

The British will "come back" rapidly in the matter of man-power. Their death rate in the last 20 years has been reduced from 17 for each thousand to 13.

Watch the birth and death statistics if you want to keep close tab on the European situation. The militarists still control Europe, and their concessions in the direction of peace, also their degree of insistence on war preparations, are regulated by the supply of available cannon fodder, as compared with the enemy's.

The baby in its cradle represents the foremost armament.

PENROD

High school girls spend an average of $4.15 a week apiece, boys $2.53, according to a check up in Boston.

This may rile old-timers who recall when many a high school lad wore pa's old suit made over by ma. In fairness to the youngsters, though: The decreased buying power of the dollar makes it necessary to divide spendings by two or three to make a just compensation with the former generation's youthful pin-money.

The Boston average budget disclosed that boys spend 14 cents a week apiece for cigarettes, girls half as much.

How long since you've seen a boy mowing a lawn or collecting junk.

DIAMONDS

Americans are importing diamonds at the rate of 65 million dollars worth a year. But that's only about 60 cents a year for each of us—5 cents a month—which certainly isn't extravagance in the modern sense. Making allowances for increased prices, the nation doesn't seem to be buying more than before the war.

The figures quoted are wholesale prices, not what the consumer pays. But, even at that, the price of several movies matches our diamond bill. We throw our diamond money several times over into the garbage pail.

CHINESE

Essex Market Court in New York, which has been trying prisoners for more than a century, receives the first drunken Chinese in its history. Did you ever see a drunken oriental?

The widespread use of drugs among the Chinese, however, suggests that the scarcity of Chinese drunkards may be less a matter of temperance and moderation than of nerves. Chinese have no nerves, in the white man's sense, most of them being able to undergo severe operations without anesthetic. This contrast will show itself in many forms as the two races increasingly come in contact with each other commercially.

OIL

Mexican oil is eclipsed by the geysers of flowing gold in the big California fields. Oil exports from Mexico in the first six months of 1923 were a third less than the total of the corresponding months of a year ago.

Mexico begins checking out. California comes in. Don't ever worry about an oil famine. When California oil fizzles, other fields will be opened up. That has been the experience in the industry since Colonel Drake drilled the first well.

BORROWERS

We are a nation of borrowers, as lawnmower owners already know. Loans of all banks in the country now total around 32 billion dollars or enough to put every American man, woman and child in debt $300.

Comparing this with the average income, the American people—by the bank loan route—have their earnings mortgaged six months ahead.

WHEAT

A world grain expert figures there are 50 million more bushels of wheat available in the leading countries this year than in 1922. Since the world is not apt to eat that much more wheat, it is rather obvious that the slump in wheat prices has been partly due to this surplus.

Overproduction is the farmer's chief problem.

THE NEW PRESIDENT

It is partly good fortune and partly a growing appreciation of the importance of the Vice Presidency that have given us President Coolidge and his capable hand on the helm of the ship of state at this critical juncture.

Both of the National Conventions in 1920 balanced their tickets with strong men—the Republicans with Calvin Coolidge, the Democrats with Franklin Roosevelt. They did not, as so many national conventions before them had done, regard the second place as one to be filled with a geographical malweight or a political harmonizer. Each sought to name a man who would not only bring strength to the ticket, but would prove, if destiny called, of Presidential size.

Particularly was this the feeling at Chicago, when Governor Coolidge, of Massachusetts, who had already figured in the Presidential list of available, was selected for second place by a preponderant majority.

We have had in all six Presidents who have succeeded to the office by death of the incumbent. Neither Tyler, Fillmore nor Johnson rose to the greatness of the office, and all were the causes of great political irritation. All of Tyler's Cabinet, except Webster resigned when he vetoed measures supported by the Whig Party, which had nominated him. Fillmore gave vent to his feelings by signing the Fugitive Slave Law. He afterward ran for President in 1856 as candidate of the American Party, and received only the electoral vote of Maryland. Johnson came near wrecking the Union after Lincoln had saved it, and barely escaped impeachment.

Arthur made a dignified and capable President. Yet when named for Vice President, he was an office-holding henchman of Conkling and Platt, whom the victorious Blaine faction desired to placate in support of Garfield.

Roosevelt was, of course, the exceptional Vice President who made a great President that he was re-elected with but feeble opposition.

Calvin Coolidge is a strong, firm, well-disciplined publicist. He brings not only high character, but great experience to his task. Owing to Mr. Harding's wise provision, he has been in effect a member of the Cabinet without portfolio, attending the semi-weekly meetings, consulted and conferred with by his chief, privy to all the inner workings of the Administration, close student of all its problems.

As Mayor of his home town, as legislator and then Governor of his state, he had already shown himself a master in the handling of administrative and legislative problems as well as a trusted leader of men. The instant decision with which he squelched the Boston police strike won him national recognition.

The new President, with characteristic promptness, has pledged himself to retain the advisers and push the policies of the Harding Administration. Roosevelt did the same thing when he succeeded McKinley and kept his word as well as any man invested with such grave responsibilities could have done.

In like manner President Coolidge may be expected to follow the general lines of the Administration in which he has been an active consultant. But new situations and new emergencies are bound to arise and he may be expected to meet them with wise determination.

His task, which would not have been easy if he had been elected to the Presidency, is made even more difficult by the fact that at every juncture he must ask himself: What would Harding have done?

But President Coolidge is able, alert, judicious. He is likely to carry his brief Administration through the next nineteen months with true Yankee skill—Minneapolis Journal.

JACK HAS TOLD ME YOU MET KARL WHITNEY AT YOUR HOUSE WHILE LESLIE WAS THERE. PERHAPS YOU WILL BE INTERESTED TO KNOW THAT HE HAS GONE ABOARD TO LONDON, WHERE MY SECOND DAUGHTER, ALICE, IS STAYING WITH THE STOKESYS. YOU, I AM SURE, WILL REMEMBER ALICE AS A TYPICAL AMERICAN GIRL. THE LETTERS SHE WRITES ME ARE MOST DIVERTING, THE LAST ONE PARTICULARLY SO. There's another of my subjects missing, said King Snookums to Nancy and Nick.

"Who is it now?" asked Nancy.

"It's my wife," said King Snookums sadly. "Missus Snookums. That's what we quarreled about. I wanted her to have Missus Snookums on her calling cards and she insisted on having Queen Snookums. I am sorry as anything that I didn't let her have her own way."

"But I didn't know queens ever called," said Nancy.

"They do," nodded King Snookums. "On other queens. Well, anyway, she's gone."

"Oh, don't worry, we'll find her. Haven't we found all your other missing subjects?" Nancy wanted to know. "Didn't we find your lord high chancellor sticking in the fisting on a cake and another Pee Wee sticking on the fly paper, and—"

"Yes, yes, yes!" said the king. "Oh, yes indeed! But they weren't my wife. When she gets insulted she stays insulted for six months and ten days and twenty-seven minutes. Why she was so cross she put on her best riding suit and sent to the stable for her fastest fly and off she rode. Oh, oh, I'll never see her again—at least for six months and ten days and twenty-seven minutes."

"Shucks!" said Nancy. "Come on, Nick. We'll find her."

"Why, it's Missus Snookums," said Nancy. "If we let you out will you get over being insulted and go home?"

"Yes, yes, yes!" said Nick. "You'd better get up," said Nick to the robin. "You're sitting on a queen."

THE YELLOW SEVEN

China Tea!

NEA Service, Inc. 1223

This unusual series of stories deals with the exploits of "Chinese" Pennington, a detective sent by his government to British North Borneo to run to earth The Yellow Seven, a gang of Chinese bandits.

A Chinaman leant warily on the rail of a bamboo bridge, gazing downward at an oozing sea of black mud. Beyond the narrow barrier of coconuts, an ocean of mud was receding, leaving an ever-widening stretch of glittering sand where a tarboared bridge spanned the swampy service of a link between the shore and the mainland and from the inner extremity an ill-defined path wound through stunted forest-wastes, teaming with chattering monkeys.

To the student of character, here was the prosperous Chinese trader come to keep an appointment he had made with someone, possibly a stranger to the district. He had selected an unmistakable landmark for his rendezvous. He wore a white drill tunic, buttoned up to the neck; wide-legged trousers of rustling black silk, and boots with elastic sides. An umbrella of oiled paper—yellow inside and red without—was tucked under one arm, and a solar topee of surprising whiteness contrasted strangely with the swarthy skin beneath.

The thundering of a pony's hooves died away in the distance, a sudden, momentary silence fell upon the hidden monkey-colonies, and the figure of a white man appeared at an opening between the trees. He stood for a moment gazing round him. Presently his glance fell upon the still form on the bridge. It was perhaps strange that at the very moment the Englishman's attention was directed in this direction, the Oriental should become aware of the piercing rags of a tropic sun—and open the umbrella for which he had hitherto found no use!

The newcomer started visibly and came forward with swift strides until he halted within a couple of feet of the Chinaman.

"Morning, Hewitt," said the Celestial in surprisingly good English. "And you must be a roll up."

The Commissioner of Police started.

"Good Lord, Pennington! I didn't know you."

"That's precisely as it should be," returned the other, "I'm delighted to see you, because for one thing, I know you'd like to be in at the dead end of a road."

"And for another, I've a hazy notion in the back of my mind that you don't altogether agree with my methods."

Captain John Hewitt raised his helmet and mopped his forehead.

"I don't say that," he returned, "but I venture to contend that you don't give yourself a fair chance. I'm perfectly natural for you to want all the kudos for the capture of Chai-Hung, but you ought to begin to realize by this time that our murderous friend is not likely to be caught single-handed. Besides, this affair's gone on too long. I'm getting chits almost every day from the Governor asking when the Yellow Seven gang is likely to be run to earth. You've had two chances already, you must remember."

The man with the Chinese eyes frowned.

"I've had the luck of the devil," he admitted, "but I'd like to impress on you that, but for me, nobody would have identified Chai-Hung with the gang at all. And he's added, defiantly, 'there have been a lot less murders on the island since I landed.'"

"There'd be fewer still—if it were not for Chai-Hung to justice."

They left the bridge and, threading their way through the trees, came presently to a solitary hut, raised high on poles, a bamboo ladder giving access to a hole in the wood.

He stood in wide clearing, waist-high with lalang, and both men held their hands above their heads to avoid cutting them on the leaves of the treacherous weeds.

Hewitt followed Pennington up the ladder into the single apartment of which the edifice boasted. The latter pushed forward a box and, squatting on the floor, he took the kudos for the capture of Chai-Hung, but you ought to begin to realize by this time that our murderous friend is not likely to be caught single-handed. ## RED PARK IS BLUE TODAY AFTER GAMES

New York Whales Cincinnati in Double-Header and Moves 7 Games Ahead

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Cincinnati's hope of gaining the pennant was sent reeling yesterday when the New York Nationals, playing in Redland field, trimmed the Reds, 4 to 2, and then again 5 to 4. The double-header victory placed the Giants seven games ahead of the third place Reds.

In New York the St. Louis Americans were preparing to celebrate a victory when Babe Ruth stepped to the plate, lined out a two-bagger with the bases full and won the game, 5 to 3. Shocker, pitching for St. Louis, threw a wonderful game until he became incautious with the Home Run King.

The Philadelphia Nationals made it two out of three in Pittsburgh by taking the game with the Pirates, 6 to 4.

In Chicago the Brooklyn Nationals made it two-all by trimming the Cubs 5 to 1.

The Philadelphia Americans ran away with Chicago in Philadelphia and piled up 14 runs against the losers' four.

Chicago used four pitchers to no effect.

The Boston Americans beat the Tigers in Boston in a close pitcher's battle, 2 to 1. Pierce was the winning pitcher again Pilette. The Boston-St. Louis game was called because of rain.

BASEBALL SERIES ON

The Minot baseball team arrived here this noon from Valley City to meet this Bismarck team in a series of seven games, beginning this evening at 6:15 p. m.

The local team will be without the services of Zimmerman, third baseman, who went to Madison, Wis., to play ball, and Shanley, who was spiked, but McNight, Nord and Condon will be in good shape for infield work.

The teams play every evening this week.

Happenny Told 'Em He'd Play Second And That's Exactly What He Did

By NEA Service

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 7.—A messenger boy ambled into the Cornet All Stars' dressing room one late June day.

He carried a telegram for one of the players. That, in itself, was amazing. Nobody, except the manager or secretary, ever received wires at the park.

But more exciting still, it was from a big league pilot—"Kid" Gleason of the White Sox. It was addressed to Second Baseman J. Clifford Happenny, 2 summers old, fresh from the University of Illinois.

The message asked "Hap" if he would mind reporting forthwith at Charley Comiskey's park in Chicago.

No Chance to Loaf

The dressing room was agog. An All Star had a chance to try out in the majors. The boys all swarmed around their second sacker. There was much hand shaking and back slapping.

"Well, I guess Gleason wants me to play second for him," Happenny told them. "I'll take Eddie Collins' place."

An injury, you remember, had forced Collins out of the game.

Of course the team thought Happenny was kidding. He really thought so himself.

That night Clifford packed up and returned to the Windy City. A few days more and Gleason had his John Henry on a contract.

Right away, Happenny jumped into "Collins' shoes," moving himself with glory until Eddie returned.

And He's a Scholar

Since then he has been getting into action frequently. Sometimes he's on short, sometimes he's subbing for Collins. Matters not where he's stationed, he gives a good account of himself.

"Hap" has been playing ball ever since he was a kid in the grade schools in Waltham.

After being graduated from Waltham High School in 1917, he matriculated at North Eastern College. The next year he went to Lowell Tech for an engineering course, receiving his diploma in May, 1921. In both these schools, he had a happy faculty of winning letters.

Followed then his two-year course at Illinois. Football, as well as baseball laurels, came his way. Likewise high scholastic honors.

Just another bit of proof that the college athlete of today is as proficient in his studies as he is in his favorite sport.

And that's the type of rookies the majors are getting now.

HAVERS ADDS TO REPUTATION AS GOLF KING

Wins in Matches Over Walter Hagen, a Professional

PLAYED IN SCOTLAND

London, Aug. 7.—Arthur Havers has been proving himself worthy of his title, open golf champion of Great Britain. Since he took the crown off Walter Hagen's brow at Troon, the young English professional has won several minor tournaments, broken some course records, picked up a pile of pounds and acquired a reputation of being one of the hardest, longest hitters the game has produced.

Following his rise to glory at Troon, Havers went over to the famous Scottish inland course, Glen eagles, and won the 1,000 guineas tournament from a select field. Soon afterwards he was in France, where he finished well in the open championships of that country, won by another Briton, James Henderson. Since returning home Havers has been hammering away in several tournaments, letting the records fall where they may.

Playing at St. Albans July 10, Havers won a 1,450 tournament, scoring 67, and followed it up with a record over the Verulam course. He did it largely with his driver, his tee shots screaming 300 yards and more down the fairways on nearly all the longer holes. He played so smoothly that almost every hole with his hitting fell under the formula of a drive, a pitch and a putt. He started with 3, 3, 2, four strokes under bogey. He carried the third green, 192 yards, with a mid-iron. At the seventh, 333 yards, his drive hit the face of a bunker guarding the green, and he got four. The eighth is a blind drive over a huge gravel pit, tee to cup measuring 354. Havers' drive stopped just thirty paces from the pin. He was out in 32 and started back by driving beyond the green of the 510-yard tenth, where he got a 45.

The eleventh is 425 yards, yet the champion's tee shot was a monstrous heeded only a light mashie-niblick pitch onto the green. He kept up this pace to the end, save at the long sixteenth—552 yards—where he topped his tee shot, missing his brassie, and needed six to sink the ball.

Old Sandy Herd, who was 31 years old when Havers was born, got a 63 the same day over the same course, but nobody paid much attention. For golf may be the old man's game, but it honors go to the young.

Remember while doing this, that the correct breathing for swimmers is a deep, slow inhalation through the mouth and a rapid exhalation through the nose. The last bit of air always should be exhaled above the water.

If preferable, you can practice this by standing in the swimming pool, grasping the railing and submerging your head.

Now try the same thing without holding the nose and with the eyes open. At the beginning, do not attempt to stay under more than about five seconds. Repeat, extending the time and, until done with ease, and naturally.

YOU ARE MISSING A GREAT SPORT IF YOU CAN'T SWIM-- AND YOU CAN MASTER THE ART IN FORTY MINUTES!

CORRECT POSITION FOR FACE-SUBMERGED BALANCING EXERCISE. HANDS TOUCH SIDE OF TANK ABOUT LEVEL OF WATER'S SURFACE. RAISING LEFT FOOT UNTIL ENTIRE BODY IS FLOATING COMPLETES THE EXERCISE.

BY LYBA M. SHEFFIELD
Directors of Swimming, University of California Summer Session, and Co-Author of "Swimming Simplified."

San Francisco, Aug. 6.—Every year hundreds of persons miss the best of summer sports—swimming—because they "never learned to swim."

They speak of swimming as some sort of higher education that can only be gained by a long and tedious foundation of preparatory work, started early in life.

Entirely wrong. Any person applying himself sincerely and adhering to certain fundamental rules can learn to swim in 40 minutes!

Of course he will not be a fancy diver or water polo contender in that time, but he will be able to keep himself afloat and to propel himself the length of an ordinary tank. Progress from this point is a matter of practice.

Fear is the bogey that keeps many out of the water. So first you must overcome this. It can be done at home.

Water Friendly
The water is very friendly and will do everything in its power to keep you afloat if you will co-operate with it. Always bear this in mind.

Then practice getting your face under water—the dread of many a novice. This is done with the aid of a large bowl of water.

Fill the bowl nearly full, take a deep breath and plunge your face under the water. Hold your nose, if you want to. Stay under until necessity forces you to "come up for air." Repeat this until you feel quite at home "under water."

Now try the same thing without holding the nose and with the eyes open. At the beginning, do not attempt to stay under more than about five seconds. Repeat, extending the time and, until done with ease, and naturally.

USE FILMS IN PROPAGANDA

Depict the Enormous Amounts of Reparation Being Paid by Germans

Berlin, Aug. 7.—Germany's gold reparations payments to date, in 100 mark paper notes, would encircle the earth 25 times, according to motion picture propaganda which is being used in the Berlin cinema houses. A 100-mark note is 16 centimeters long, or about 6.3 inches.

To make the point as realistic as possible, there is flashed on the screen a picture of a common pediclar globe, such as is used in the geography classes of American schools, spinning rapidly about as a long string of these notes wrap round and round it.

It is the last scene in a serial picture of three parts which depicts the numerous illustrations of the vastness of Germany's suffering as a result of the Versailles treaty. The audiences sit almost breathless as reel after reel shows how much territory, shipping, livestock, coal, money, and material have had to be given up by the Fatherland.

Fuel is added to the fire of indignation by including a reel to illustrate what an overwhelming proportion of the taxes must be devoted to reparations payments. It reminds the tax-paying spectator that this promises to continue until 1925. A general groan invariably greets this comforting bit of information.

There can be little doubt as to the nature of feelings toward the Versailles treaty and the Entente with which the audiences leave a showing of this kind.

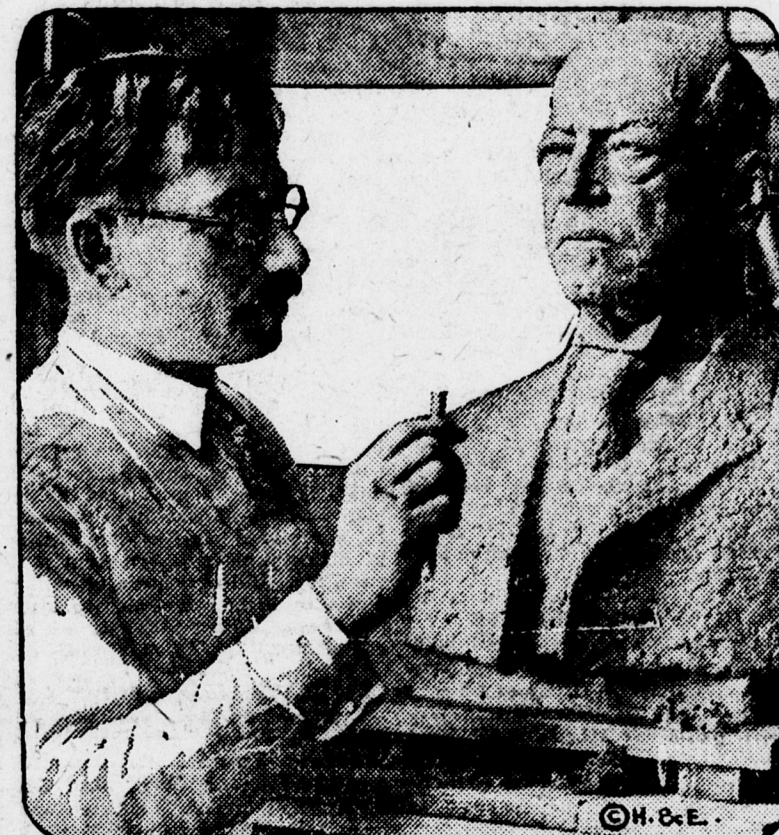

One apparent effort is made at the end of the serial to guard it against charges of being too provocative and conducive to sentiment against the treaty. As the spinning globe, with its miles upon miles of hundred mark notes fades out, a still picture is shown to counteract out of "all this chaos."

The answer, in huge inspiring letters, ends the film. It is: "Unity and justice and liberty."

May Cure Leprosy

By NEA Service

Seattle, Aug. 7.—Sanitation and healthful living will finally wipe the scourge of leprosy from the face of the earth. Leprosy is not hereditary.

Such cheerful assurance was brought to the United States recently when Dr. Benjamin Primelles, international leprosy authority, arrived here from the orient on his way to Europe.

"Leprosy," says Dr. Primelles, "is on the increase in many parts of the world—China, India, Manila and the Hawaiian islands, but that need not cause any too great alarm. The disease is not hereditary and will be wiped out in time by sanitation and healthful living."

"There is great hope for the future, provided governments will aid in ridding the countries of filthy living conditions. Leprosy, as a menace today, does not compare in any part of the world with the tubercular plague.

"We cannot say definitely that we have a cure for leprosy, but the Choulmoogra oil is giving much promise. It is being used with success and we believe it will prove a permanent cure."

Dr. and Mrs. Primelles and their small son, Rene, are going to Strasbourg, where Dr. Primelles will attend the third conference of leprosy authorities. They will return later to their home in Havana, Cuba, where the doctor is chief director of the government leprosy hospital.

RED PARK IS BLUE TODAY AFTER GAMES

New York Whales Cincinnati in Double-Header and Moves 7 Games Ahead

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Cincinnati's hope of regaining the pennant was sent soaring yesterday when the New York Nationals, playing in Redland field, trimmed the Reds, 4 to 2, and then won a 5 to 4 double-header victory.

The Philadelphia Nationals made it the third of three in Pittsburgh by taking the game with the Pirates, 6 to 4.

In Chicago the Brooklyn Nationals made it two-all by trimming the Cubs 5 to 1.

The Cleveland Americans leaned up on the Senators in Washington, winning 5 to 2.

The Philadelphia Americans ran away with Chicago in Philadelphia and piled up 14 runs against the losers' four.

Chicago used four pitchers to no effect. The Boston Americans beat the Tigers in Boston in a close pitcher's battle, 2 to 1. Pierce was the winning pitcher again for the Sox.

The St. Louis game was called because of rain.

BASEBALL SERIES ON

The Minot baseball team arrived here this noon from Valley City to meet the Bismarck team in a series of seven games, beginning this evening at 8:15 p. m.

The local team will be without the services of Zimmerman, third baseman, who went to Madison, Wis., to play ball, and Sweeney, who was spiked, but McNight, Nord and Condon will be in good shape for infield work.

The teams play every evening this week.

Darling, of East Hampton, Long Island, New York, and dog Paddy, who are walking across the United States with Alaska as their ultimate destination, stopped here. ## Happenny Told 'Em He'd Play Second And That's Exactly What He Did

By NEA Service.
Lynn, Mass., Aug. 7.—A messenger boy ambled into the Cornet All Stars' dressing room one late June day. He carried a telegram for one of the players. That, in itself, was amazing. Nobody, except the manager or secretary, ever received wires at the park.

But more exciting still, it was from a big league pitcher—"Kid" Gleason of the White Sox. It was addressed to Second Baseman J. Clifford Happenny, 23 summers old, fresh from the University of Illinois.

The message asked "Hap" if he would mind reporting forthwith at Charley Comiskey's park in Chicago.

No Chance to Loaf
The dressing room was agog. An All Star had a chance to try out in the majors. The boys all swarmed around their second sacker. There was much hand shaking and back slapping.

"Well, I guess Gleason wants me to play second for him," Happenny told them. "I'll take Eddie Collins' place."

An injury, you remember, had forced Collins out of the game. Of course the team thought Happenny was kidding. He really thought so himself.

That night Clifford packed up and returned to the Windy City. A few days more and Gleason had his John Henry on a contract.

Right away, Happenny jumped in to replace the injured player. He really thought so himself.

And He's a Scholar
Since then he has been getting in to action frequently. Sometimes he's on short, sometimes he's subbing for Collins. Matters not where he's stationed, he gives a good account of himself.

"Hap" has been playing ball ever since he was a kid in the grade schools in Waltham.

After being graduated from Waltham High School in 1917, he matriculated at North Eastern College. The next year he went to Lowell Tech for an engineering course, receiving his diploma in May, 1921. In both these schools, he had a happy faculty of winning letters.

Followed then his two-year course at Illinois. Football, as well as baseball laurels, came his way. Likewise high scholastic honors.

Just another bit of proof that the college athlete of today is as proficient in his studies as he is in his favorite sport.

And that's the type of rookies the majors are getting now.

HAVERS ADDS TO REPUTATION AS GOLF KING

Wins in Matches Over Walter Hagen, a Professional

PLAYED IN SCOTLAND

London, Aug. 7.—Arthur Havers has been proving himself worthy of his title, open golf champion of Great Britain. Since he took the crown off Walter Hagen's brow at Troon, the young English professional has won several minor tournaments, broken some course records, picked up a pile of pounds and acquired a reputation of being one of the hardest, longest hitters the game has produced.

Following his rise to glory at Troon, Havers went over to the famous Scottish inland course, Glen Eagles, and won the 1,000 guinea tournament from a select field. Soon afterwards he was in France, where he finished well in the open championships of that country, won by another Briton, James Ockenden. Since returning home Havers has been hammering away in several tournaments, letting the records fall where they may.

Playing at St. Albans July 10, Havers won a £450 tournament, scoring 67 on his second round for a new record over the Verulam course. He did it largely with his driver, his tee shots averaging 300 yards and more down the fairways on nearly all the longer holes. He played so smoothly that almost every hole with his hitting fell under the formula of a drive, a pitch and a putt. He started with 3, 3, 2, four strokes under bogey. He carried the drive, green, 199 yards, with a misnomer. At the event, 333 yards, his drive hit the face of a bunker guarding the green, and he got four. The eighth is a blind drive over a huge gravel pit, tee to cup measuring 354. Havers' drive stopped just thirty paces from the pin. He drove beyond the green of the 319 yard tenth, where he got a 3.

The eleventh is 435 yards, yet the champion's tee shot was so monstrous he needed only a light mashie-midie to pitch onto the green. He kept up this pace to the end, save at the long sixteenth—552 yards—where he topped his tee shot, lagged his brassie, and needed six to sink the ball.

Old Sandy Herd, who was 31 years old when Havers was born, got a 39 the same day over the same course, but nobody paid much attention. For golf may be the old man's game, but its honors go to the young.

Water Friendly
The water is very friendly and will do everything in its power to keep you afloat if you will co-operate with it. Always bear this in mind.

First practice getting your face under water—the dread of many a novice. This is done with the aid of a large bowl of water.

Fill the bowl nearly full, take a deep breath and plunge your face under the water. Hold your nose, if you want to. Stay under until necessity forces you to "come up for air." Repeat this until you feel quite at home "under water."

Now try the same thing without holding the nose and with the eyes open. At the beginning, do not attempt to stay under more than about five seconds. Repeat, extending the time under, until done with ease, and naturally.

Remember while doing this, that the correct breathing for swimmers is a deep, slow inhalation through the mouth and a rapid exhalation through the nose. The last bit of air always should be exhaled above the water.

If preferable, you can practice this by standing in the swimming pool, grasping the railing and submerging your head.

Kinks o' the Links

In medal play, Smith hands in his card, on which a mistake has occurred. He plays the round of 18 holes in 97. His handicap is 16-35, turned in his net total as 89 instead of 81. The mistake is later discovered by the official in charge. Is a player penalized for turning in an incorrect score for the round?

There is no penalty for such an offense as above stated. The player is to merely turn in his score for each hole. Often players, in order to find out their scores, will add the score for each hole and subtracting the handicap. A mistake in addition or subtraction is always possible. The player is not supposed to do this, it is the duty of the official in charge. When such a mistake has been made, the official checking up the cards simply places the correct total on the scoreboard.

What is supposed to be the regulation size and weight of a golf ball? The ball must not weigh over 1.32 ounces avoirdupois and the size not less than 1.62 inches in diameter.

Puzzling Plays

The Play.
What are the rights of the coacher? A play came up in a minor league game last summer that brought up the point as to whether the intent of a coacher must be given consideration.

With two out and runners on second and third, with the ball in the pitcher's possession while standing on the rubber, the coacher at third dashed for the plate yelling "Home!" "Home." His intent was to draw a throw from the pitcher.

The pitcher stepped off the rubber, intending, perhaps, to throw the ball home, but seeing it was the coacher running, made no play.

The umpire declared the runner on third out because of the act of the coacher. He held that if the coacher attempts to draw a throw because of his actions the runner on third is out whether or not a play is made.

The umpire was wrong in ruling the runner on third was out because of the coacher's dashing toward the plate, because no play was made. The rule states he must draw the throw to the home base for the runner to be declared out.

If such a play came up in a game in which I was the umpire I would suspend the play and send the coacher to the bench or the clubhouse.

LOVE BUCK REMAINS
Marmarth, N. D., Aug. 7.—One lone antelope buck of a herd of 20 of a year ago remains in the Bad Lands southwest of here. The animal has been seen by several people. It is being watched and is being fed by the game warden.

It is believed to have driven the rest of the herd to other fields, and the one buck is the sole remaining antelope of the hundreds of thousands which roamed North Dakota 40 to 45 years ago.

YOU ARE MISSING A GREAT SPORT IF YOU CAN'T SWIM AND YOU CAN MASTER THE ART IN FORTY MINUTES!

BY LYRA M. SHEFFIELD

Directors of Swimming, University of California Summer Session, and Co-Author of "Swimming Simplified."

San Francisco, Aug. 6.—Every year hundreds of persons miss the best of summer sports—swimming—because they "never learned to swim."

They speak of swimming as some sort of higher education that can only be gained by a long and tedious foundation of preparatory work, started early in life.

Entirely wrong. Any person applying himself sincerely and adhering to certain fundamental rules can learn to swim in 40 minutes!

Of course he will not be a fancy diver, nor will he be able to keep himself afloat and to propel himself the length of an ordinary tank. Progress from this point is a matter of practice.

Fear is the bogey that keeps many out of the water. So first you must overcome this. It can be done at home.

Water Friendly
The water is very friendly and will do everything in its power to keep you afloat if you will co-operate with it. Always bear this in mind.

First practice getting your face under water—the dread of many a novice. This is done with the aid of a large bowl of water.

Fill the bowl nearly full, take a deep breath and plunge your face under the water. Hold your nose, if you want to. Stay under until necessity forces you to "come up for air." Repeat this until you feel quite at home "under water."

Now try the same thing without holding the nose and with the eyes open. At the beginning, do not attempt to stay under more than about five seconds. Repeat, extending the time under, until done with ease, and naturally.

Remember while doing this, that the correct breathing for swimmers is a deep, slow inhalation through the mouth and a rapid exhalation through the nose. The last bit of air always should be exhaled above the water.

If preferable, you can practice this by standing in the swimming pool, grasping the railing and submerging your head.

Extend one foot backward, keeping the leg straight, until it is as close to the surface as possible. Then take a deep breath and quickly submerge the face, at the same time bringing both feet to the surface and extending the body. Do not let go your grasp of the railing.

As soon as you feel your air supply becoming exhausted, regain standing position. This is done by bringing the knees up under the body until they almost touch the stomach and then lowering the feet to the bottom of the pool. Unless you do it correctly, you are apt to sink yourself, so it is best to take it slowly and intelligently.

When you can float yourself and regain standing position easily, try the same thing with only the index fingers touching the support, and then with the fingers touching the side of the tank just above the support. You regain standing position from the latter exercise by lowering the hands to the support just before it's time to "come up" and then following the correct method. I advise that you try this exercise in water about waist deep.

Be content to follow these exercises until you have thoroughly mastered them; they are the foundation of swimming.

NEWSPAPER CONTEST CASE IS DECIDED

Supreme Court Decides Against Ransom County Paper Trying to Overturn Election

ISSUES RAISED

The supreme court, in a decision handed down today, affirmed the decision of District Judge Frank P. Allen in dismissing the case in which the Ransom County Farmers Press sought to deprive the Lisbon Free Press of the title of official paper of Ransom county, which it won at the last November election. The court's decision, while strongly intimating that the corrupt practices act did not apply in the case of measures submitted to the voters, decided the case on the ground that an equitable action did not lie, but that a regular election contest was the method by which remedy should have been sought.

The case was instituted by the Ransom County Farmers Press and Charles G. Bangert in the Ransom county district court, the case being appealed by the plaintiff from the order of Judge Frank P. Allen sustaining a demurrer to complaint and vacating restraining order.

The Ransom County Farmers Press publishes the Enderlin Independent, while the defendant Jay H. Malby is the owner of The Lisbon Free Press.

The Enderlin Independent was the official paper of the county for two years after being elected in November, 1920, Jay H. Malby, publisher of the Lisbon Free Press, before the election in November, 1922, published an advertisement in which it said that if the Free Press was elected official paper it promised to put before every voter in Ransom county a copy of the issues containing the delinquent tax list, the plaintiff asserted.

This promise, the plaintiff charged, was made for the purpose of influencing voters to vote for the Free Press for official paper, and that the advertisement constituted "the holding out of a bribe or reward or promise of some kind of value to the voters of Ransom county and to said county for a condition and consideration for their votes." This, it alleged, was a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act.

The Lisbon Free Press was elected official paper, and the Ransom County Farmers Press is now suing in order to have the election annulled for violation of the corrupt practices act, and that the Enderlin Independent be declared official paper.

The plaintiff maintained that newspapers which were candidates for official paper came within the scope of the Corrupt Practices Act and that as individual candidates.

Yankee Swims English Channel

Calais, France, Aug. 7.—Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., yesterday achieved an ambition he has had for years—that of swimming the English channel and duplicating the feat of Captain Webb and G. W. Burgess, the only two men to perform the feat.

Sullivan took the water at 4:20 p. m. Sunday at Dover, England, and finished here last night in front of the Casino at 8:05 o'clock, his unofficial time being 27 hours 45 minutes for the approximately 22 1/2 miles straight across the channel from point to point.

Just how far Sullivan had to swim in battling his way across the choppy waters buffeted by the waves and carried hither and thither by the succeeding tides, has not yet been definitely ascertained. One report last night was that he had swum a distance of 90 kilometers, or 56 miles.

The latest announcement of Sullivan's time fixed at 27 hours 45 minutes, as compared with Captain Webb's 27 hours and 45 minutes and that of Burgess 22 hours 35 minutes. Examination by a physician showed Sullivan to be in good condition despite his prolonged exertion. He took the night steamer back to Dover.

USE FILMS IN PROPAGANDA

Depict the Enormous Amounts of Reparation Being Paid by Germans

Berlin, Aug. 7.—Germany's gold reparations payments to date, in 100-mark paper notes, would encircle the earth 25 times, according to motion-picture propaganda which is being used in the Berlin cinema houses. A 100-mark note is 15 centimeters long, or about 6.5 inches.

To make the point as realistic as possible, there is flashed on the screen a picture of a common pedestrian globe, 300 as is used in the geography classes of American schools, spinning rapidly about as a long string of these notes wrap round and round it.

It is the last scene in a serial picture of three parts which depicts by numerous illustrations the vastness of Germany's sufferings as a result of the Versailles treaty. The audience sit almost breathless as reel after reel shows how much territory, shipping, livestock, coal, money, and material have had to be given up by the Fetherland.

Fuel is added to the fire of indignation by including a reel to illustrate what an overwhelming proportion of the taxes must be devoted to reparations payments. It reminds the tax-paying spectator that this promise to continue until 1927. A general groan invariably greets this comforting bit of information.

There can be little doubt as to the nature of feelings toward the Versailles treaty and the Entente with which the audiences leave a showing of this kind.

One apparent effort is made at the end of the serial to guard it against charges of being too provocative and conducive to sentiment against the treaty. As the spinning globe, with its miles upon miles of hundred mark notes fades out, a sub-title asks what is to come out of "all this chaos." The answer, in huge inspiring letters, ends the film. It is: "Unity and justice and liberty."

START POURING CONCRETE FOR WATER WORKS

Excavation for Filtration Plant Being Put in by City Virtually Finished

PIPE LAYING HELD UP

Lack of Pipe Causes Temporary Suspension of Laying 16-Inch Main

Pouring of concrete on the walls of the sedimentation basin of the city water works filtration plant began today, but work of laying the new big 16-inch main to the city is suspended because of lack of material. Excavation for the filtration plant is all virtually complete and work on the building will go ahead rapidly, with the pouring of concrete. It is hoped to have the building enclosed by cold weather so that installation of machinery can go right ahead.

Failure of the American Cast Iron Pipe company to ship services to go on the 16-inch pipe has caused suspension of that work. The deep trench in which this main is laid is now complete from near the river to part way across the Country Club grounds, and a machine is setting on Avenue C to carry it on down to the heart of the city. The pipe now in the ground will not be covered until a test is made of it, T. R. Atkinson, city engineer, informed the city commission last night.

The city engineer also reported that as compensation for right-of-way across his land J. J. Jackman had suggested that the city lay a new three-fourths inch pipe to his house. The cost was estimated at probably $300. The city engineer thought this proposition was reasonable. Action probably will be taken Thursday night.

Whether the reservoirs of the Bismarck Water Supply Company will be cleaned before the city takes over the plant is in question. A representative of the company appeared before the commission last night and said that inasmuch as the city will take over the plant soon it had been suggested by the company attorney that the company and city divide the expense of cleaning the reservoirs. He said that while it was customary to clean them after the June rise the water had remained so high and turbid that it would have been useless to do so, and only within the last few days has the water gone down enough to make it feasible to clean them. He reported work was awaited from Judge Flannery, president of the company. The matter was held in abeyance until Thursday night, it being expected that word will have been received from Judge Flannery by that time.

Adjourn Meeting

The commission adjourned its meeting until Thursday so that it could take action in the event of an unfavorable decision of the supreme court in the city water works bond issue case. Should the decision be unfavorable a special election would be called so that the city could still carry out its contract to take over the water works, it having agreed to do this by September 9.

Question of allowance of estimates of contractors for work already done was discussed briefly but no action taken. The city has not as yet received funds from warrants or bonds to be used in paying contractors.

PAVING BIDS ARE RECEIVED

Morton County Board of Commissioners to Let Contract

Bids were received yesterday afternoon by the county commissioners of Morton county and by the city commission of Mandan last night for paving of Main street in Mandan to the city limits and on through the new underpass at the Northern Pacific main line and north line junction east of Mandan.

The county board was meeting again this afternoon and was expected to act upon the bids, awarding a contract.

C. F. Kelsch, city attorney, and E. R. Griffin, city engineer, of Mandan, had ruled that protests against the city's proposed paving, which included Main street east and some cross streets, lacked sufficient signatures to be effective.

There were seven bidders on concrete, and asphaltic concrete 18-foot roadways.

The bids, according to State Engineer Black, were fairly low.

London to Foster Technical Training

London, Aug. 7.—Two-thirds of the boys reared in London enter casual trades, as unskilled labor and shopmen, and only 13 per cent of them enter the skilled trades.

These figures, which have been prepared in the interests of a campaign to furnish greater technical education for London's youth, are said to be higher in unskilled and lower in skilled trades than any other large city in western Europe or America.

This is the result of insufficient technical training centers, and the poverty among the lower classes, which forces the boys to work at very early ages.

The campaign which is being backed by many welfare organizations will attempt to arouse interest in the establishing of training centers throughout England.

The sea covers three-fourths of the earth's surface, or a total area of about 146 million square miles.

HE'S GOT 600 ELEPHANTS BUT WANTS STILL MORE

HERB SCHOENFELD AND HIS ELEPHANTS.

By NEA Service

Seattle, Aug. 7.—Herb Schoenfeld, Seattle business man, has a white elephant on his hands—and several hundred more of various types, sizes and colors.

When it comes to elephants, Schoenfeld is a "fiend." He cheerfully admits it. He has an overpowering penchant for hand-carved pachyderms of any breed.

Schoenfeld's collection now numbers some 600 specimens and is growing. He has been gathering them in from the far corners of the world for 15 years and his business office, where he houses his pets, looks like an elephantine menagerie.

"I have always liked elephants," explains Schoenfeld. "I have always been interested in reading about their symbolism—their connection, in the eyes of orientals, with good luck, friendship and strength. Fifteen years ago I was in Japan where elephant bronzes were numerous. The opportunity was there and I started my collection."

The Schoenfeld "herd" now includes artistic creations in bronze, marble, porcelain, mahogany, native woods of European and tropical forests, coral and sponge. The largest of the group measures four feet from tail to trunk and is 25 inches high. It is of bronze, and came originally from Honolulu. An elephant carved from pink coral is the smallest one, a miniature of about one-half by one-fourth inch.

When Schoenfeld's friends go touring in distant places, they send him more elephants.

"And some days," he says, "I hope to get a live one."

A public invitation is extended, it is announced, and in addition to Gov. R. A. Nestos, special invitations have been extended to Frank Murphy of Wheaton, Minn., leader of a similar movement in that state and to Senator Johnson of Minnesota.

"It is hoped that all of Northwest North Dakotans will have representatives here and that all who can will avail themselves of this opportunity of the work being done, the plan proposed, and the possibilities of success," Mr. Halvorson said today.

LIQUIDATION OF BANKS IN STATE BETTER

Deposits Shown to Have Increased Over Same Period For Year Ago

GENERALLY HEALTHY

Surplus Reserve Over Legal Requirements Is Shown in Banks as a Whole

State banks of North Dakota as a whole show a continued healthy condition in the abstract of reports made on call of the state bank examiner as of close of business on June 30, 1923, according to figures made public today.

The amount of bills payable of the 643 state banks and four trust companies reporting was $18,139,843.29 on June 30, 1923, as compared to $25,720,185.81 on June 30, 1922, a decrease of $7,580,342.52 being shown in one year, an unusually heavy liquidation. Between April 3, 1923, and June 30, 1923 the bills payable decreased $66,167.09, showing a liquidation during a usually heavy borrowing period.

Deposits of the banks and trust companies also on June 30, 1923 stood $4,000,000 above the figure on the same date a year previous. Total deposits on June 30, 1923, were $91,467,408.28. A decrease was shown between April 30 and June 30, 1923, this being expected at this time of year.

The total reserve of the state banks also is shown to be higher than required by law. Surplus reserve on June 30, 1923 amounted to $2,567,020.94. Total reserve on June 30, 1923 was $9,820,805.66 as compared to $9,110,010.70 a year previous.

Savings deposits show an increase for all comparative periods. The deposits of this class totalled $2,970,467.15 on June 30, 1923, as compared to $2,368,228.07 on June 30, 1922 and $2,946,589.91 on April 3, 1923.

The number of banks reporting on June 30, 1923, was 17 less than on June 30, 1922.

NORMA SCORES IN NEW ROLE

"Within The Law," Shown at Eltinge Theater, Is Dramatic Triumph For Her

Norma Talmadge has given the screen one of the most gripping dramas of a decade in her picturization of "Within the Law," the first National picture which opened at the Eltinge theater yesterday. It will be shown again today and Wednesday, with matinee and evening performances.

"Within the Law" enjoys the reputation of being the most successful stage drama ever produced. If present indications are any criterion, it will be an even greater success on the silver sheet, for as a moving picture it is more moving entertainment.

As Mary Turner, a department store employee sent to prison for a theft that another committed (the role in which Jane Cowl distinguishes ed herself before the footlights), Norma Talmadge rises to perhaps the greatest emotional heights of her career.

Jack Mulhall gives his finest screen performance as Dick Gilder, while Helen Percy, as Aggie Lynch, the blackmailer, contributes a characterization that is particularly vivid.

Three members of the cast, who were in the original company of "Within the Law," which was produced in 1912, again distinguish themselves. DeWitt Jennings, whose portrayal of Inspector Burke on the stage was one of the bright spots of Broadway premiere, again essays the same part with equal success. Lincoln Plummer, the Cassidy of stage fame, is seen in the same role on the screen, while Lew Cody, who was Dick Gilder, on the stage, gives a splendid characterization of Joe Garson in the picture.

Joseph Kilgour, Helen Ferguson, Warde Crane, Lionel Belmore, Catherine Murphy and Thomas Ricketts have roles of importance. Frank Lloyd, director of many successes, adds another to his credit with "Within the Law."

COOLIDGE SEES MANY PEOPLE

Washington, Aug. 7.—A constant stream of visitors kept President Coolidge busy yesterday and gave him an insight into some of the governmental problems requiring his early attention. Conferences were held on a variety of subjects, but they all were subordinated to the preparation of plans for the funeral here of President Harding.

Many called at the hotel suite occupied by Mr. Coolidge simply to pay their respects. Chairman Hammond of the federal coal commission and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, however, discussed various phases of the coal situation with the new executive. In neither conference, it was said, was the possibility of a strike in the anthracite field discussed. The agricultural situation was taken up with Fred W. Stark, director of the war finance corporation, who submitted a summary of tentative plans to afford further relief to farmers.

NORTH DAKOTA--
Land of Opportunity

Once famed for its vast wheat ranches, and still one of the great wheat-producing states of the Union, North Dakota is on the threshold of a new era.

The days of pioneering are past, and dairy- and diversified farming are pointing the way to a greater prosperity.

Every crop known to the temperate zone can be successfully grown in North Dakota, and fertile lands are still to be bought cheaply.

For the farmer who has faith in the future, North Dakota is indeed a land of opportunity. Know your state!

Columbia Dry Batteries for all purposes are sold by hardware and general stores, electrical and auto supply shops, garages and implement dealers.

And whether you're going touring or not, this is the kind of weather that calls for regular attention to your battery to be sure it's on the job.

Do you "Repeat" on your tires?

Do you buy the same make of tire again? Most SILVERTOWN users do; and that's the test of a tire. SILVERTOWN performance, of course, does it. Back of the performance is the sound manufacturing principle of maintained quality. Skill, effort, and care are centered in SILVERTOWN. It comes out in performance, and repeats.
